DEMOCRATIC LETTERS FROM EUROPE.

RELATIONS OF EUROPE AND AMERICA.

Impossibility of the Policy of Absolute Non-Intervention.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

TURIN, Italy, Dec. 2, 1863.

SIR: Agreeably to your courteous desire I am going to resume my old quarters in the NEW-YORK TIMES, where, just ten years ago—in the tartar-hoaxed period of the Crimean war—you gave me leave to discourse—under the above heading and signature—upon European politics in general and their bearing upon American affairs in particular. If, in the face of the tumultuous Present, full of living eventualities, it were not utterly absurd to linger among the shadows of the haunted Past, I might be tempted to warble a few lines of self-assertion (on that well-known air of all birds of evil, "Did not I tell you?") about the Cassandra truth which my now oblivion-hallowed letters of yore have told respecting the certainty of European monarchical meddling in republican America. I won't be absurd, and without retracing my steps into "Auld Long Syne," I enter into the matter at once. There are, however, some facts of perennial importance, which, for the better understanding of the spirit that will inspire my deductions from anterior causes and present complications, must be restated, before proceeding to the treatment of the innumerable "actualities" that are lying, both ways, before us, like leaves in Valombrosa. And this generalization will form, if you please, the subject-matter of this first "fit," in which, as well as in the following ones, I claim, Sir, your old favor to let me speak out in my own way, though it may, at times, sound strange and strong.

It is not commercial prosperity; it is Popular Sovereignty that made you hated, because feared in all Courts and scurrily premised. Material well-being alone would never have exposed you to any serious external dangers. Ravenous appetites would have been roused by it, no doubt, and shopkeeping interests all over the world would have been filled with envy at your getting enormously rich: still, wealth alone, however gigantic and coveted, would not have inspired any royal apprehension, but for the fact that all that welfare and unequaled progress have been the result of republican self-government. You are Dives without wearing a crown—a sight quite insupportable for enthroned Lazaruses, none the more virtuous for being mendicants. You did very little, next to nothing, (and herein lies your traditional error, heightened by talk somewhat too provokingly loud in one who did so little,) for "the propagation of democratic gospel in foreign parts;" but you placed, nevertheless, before nations versed in the "cold shade" of unnatural aristocracies and royal upas trees, the seductive spectacle of a vast commonwealth growing up to power and influence by the free exercise of all human faculties without any aid from crowned heads and their divine rights. The consequence was inevitable. Having given "local habitation and a name" of undeniable substantiability to theories about popular sovereignty, which, in the Old World of hereditary drones, have been sneered at or even pitied as being, at best, but "the fine frenzies" of a few unpractical dreamers and demagogic have-nothings, in search of absent culottes, the great Republic of America stood at once and fatally a constant, living menace, a "dreaded name" of Miltonic awfulness, to all thrones, majesties, highnesses and (in the graphic translation of German Durchlauchte into BARRY LYNDON's English) "transparencies." Now, if COLUMBUS had not discovered you, or if the record of his discovery and "all that came of it" had been buried under the ruins of the Old World, passing through one of its periodical fits of fossiliferous transformation—you, if spared by the partiality of the geological cataclysm, might have lived on in the quiet enjoyment of your unknown prosperity, without any fear of molestation from the incipient monarchies of a relenvagging Europe. But "the carnivorous beasts of the Old Continent" are by no means yet down, and the gigantic sloths of our oligarchies—though they be mummies to all useful intents and purposes—are still on their genealogical trees. We have not been drowned, Sir, and much as I do share the ecstacy of knowing naturalists in anticipating a "formation," in which even our odd fishes will be good for something, yet they are still antidiluvians. Sir, I assure you, and they knew at least this much, that the Republic would be their death. This instinctive knowledge could not but be most exciting to rage against you, who represent, and not bashfully, not in Swiss fashion or San Marino style, just the very thing they dread. Add to this the envicinating powers of steam and electricity conspiring with an ubiquitous press to satisfy curiosity, hope and expectations. Sir, it is not the decembrisation of Mexico by MAXIMILIAN, nor the favor shown by British philanthropists to slave-holders that astonishes me; it is the almost incredible fact that you are left to cut your own throats without any help, save in the shape of a few razors from Europe. Disturbance does not account for that astonishing abstention, and I will show you, by and by, that you owe it all to the happy circumstance that our dear old continent is actually in what newsmen call her "state," and it is such a state! But for this paucidential diversion, the United States would not have escaped the "friendly offices of the allies" to disunite you. Nor is the danger past, though it be averted for the time being. Monarchical Europe cannot look on unconcerned at your growing under the Phrygian cap. She can't afford it. She will go, sooner or later, as soon as she can, to set you to rights-divine. It is sure as her death in case she suffers you to outgrow her. American statesmanship should never loose sight of this coming event, which has already cast its shadows, increasing the gloom of your difficulties, and darkening your prospects in the hour of adversity. Monarchism could not appear as yet among you, except in the shape of a menace of what you may expect on some future day, but that menace hovers about your heads and works, in its paralyzing way, by its foul breath, to ruin, if possible, that mighty Commonwealth which, by a bright example of unprecedented progress, encourages nationalities emancipate themselves of all bonds of servitude. American policy should be directed to prevent the consummation of these schemes. She might have thwarted them, perhaps, for ever, if in 1848-9 she had come to Europe to help this continent in its struggle for democratic self-government. She did not come, and the result is, as a first step, a Mexican Empire proclaimed by a French army in the neighborhood of black secession. In this question of propaganda, you are neither wide-awake nor go-ahead. You don't see yet that the European statesman and the American statesman embody two ideas that are in deadly war with one another. It is a duel au dernier sang. America made a great mistake: she missed a great opportunity to insure her safety at home by assisting the consolidation of republics on the European continent. Not is such another opportunity likely to recur for some time, the thoroughly democratic currents of public opinion, which in 1848 formed one mighty gulf stream of isothermal tendencies, having since undergone considerable deviations in various directions. Yet without the aid of similar currents, America could effect but little in Europe, for I am certainly not one who would advise the Cabinet of Washington to play here the undignified part of a petty conspirator in absurd plots for the emancipation of some or other people not over-anxious to change masters. With the present used-up temper of our continent, and until such time as the character of the masses should show unmistakable signs of a healthier tone in public morals, no change in the systems of government can be looked for. There may be risings somewhere; an OTHO may be kicked out by subjects anxious to have another King; pretendents may rouse the populaillards Germans, and even a great war may not be among the improbabilities; but with all this monarchism, constitutional or other, will hold its ground as long as it shall so please Paris. Nothing, indeed, short of a successful revolution in the republican sense, there, will and can change "the face of Europe." All else is grimacing and mortification of the body social. This, however, does not imply, by any means, an advice to American statesmanship to do here nothing at all. You must work with such tools as are at your disposal; for, in this "struggle for life," idling away the time is the surest way to ruin by "natural selection." Your true allies being eclipsed, dormant, you should have temporary connections, for specified cases, with at least one of the great Powers of Europe, and, in any case, with Italy, a State which you will learn to value more and more, as one of paramount importance in the future defence of your interests. Without entering for the present into a disquisition of the actual state of European complications, I merely state my well-natured opinion, that an offensive and defensive alliance between you and Russia would be useful or very mischievous, according to the enemies to be confronted. It would be useful in any war in which Austria were to go with France and England, or one of these two. It would be very mischievous in any war in which Austria were to fight on the side of Russia. You, I know, think me somewhat prejudiced in respect to that empire (better vampire) of Vienna; nor do I disclaim my share of thorough hatred toward that devilish obstruction to all human progress, but I assure you, without any passion at all, that, to the best of my belief—resting entirely on arguments supplied by coldest reason—you can always make sure of the side you should embrace, in any emergency, by simply going with those opposed to Austria. Some other day I shall treat this special question more at large; now I only touched it in the way of a passing illustration of my general thesis. I cannot, indeed, sufficiently insist upon the urgent necessity for you to secure here allies against the evil day on which monarchism will be at leisure to pay you a visit. Believe me, prudentia dictat securitatem, and that day may even be very near, provided we have no war here next Spring.

It is a very mischievous mistake to fancy that by not meddling with Europe she will leave you alone. She can't. There are too many odds against her. Is playing with you on equal terms, at abstention. You won't catch her at such a game of speculation, if she can help it. She is not such a fool as that, and even you must admit—though you may chuckle over the admission—that it would not be fair play. The example set by Queen Europe is not very dangerous to you. Her majesty's style of living is not likely to induce you into anything approaching to approval and hence imitation. The case is quite different for us when "gazing" at Miss America, from this side of the Atlantic Ocean—a distance that "lends greater enchantment to the view." We can't look at her without strange longings for an introduction, and without feeling vexed, ashamed and "dreamy." That young lady is quite capable of turning a great many heads, and, what is still more significant and portentous, it is just the best heads that are turned; fools, rakes, courtiers, blacklegs and parasites of every species, being quite as blind to see her beauty as is the common run of "connoisseurs" to find "anything extraordinary in those famous Madonnas of RAFFAEL." Now, though it be quite true that discerning admiration is a privileged gift of the few, the great mass of ignorant worshipers remaining thus prostrate at the bottines de Paris of some "social evil," yet there are days of periodical revelation when people, even the most uninstructed, seem to be enlightened by a sudden spark of discrimination, and see—as if a cataract had been removed from their eyes—all the false teeth and hideous patches of the painted idol that claims their homage. A ray from such a spark has warmed the darkened vision of the workmen in the Faubourg St. Antoine, when, a few weeks ago, all of a sudden, they absolutely refused passage through their quartier to the splendid carriages of some "well-known beauties" of the stage ("and the whole Parisian world is a stage,") who were driving in all the protruded glory of their unblushing luxury to meet their fashionable entraiteneurs on the courses of Vincennes. Don't you see, Sir, in this slight manifestation of popular sentiment a true harbinger of the day on which there will be "no thoroughfare" for harlots and their keepers of any kind, in any quartier of honest labor and manly dignity. I have strong faith in such a future, and hence I must tell you once more that your sitting at home quietly cannot satisfy the prodigate guardians of our fair Europa. They want you to retire from the bay-window of your "battery." They desire you to become invisible, locked up, or visible only "in redeemed circumstances," with consumption blushing on the hollow cheeks. How happy they would feel if they could show America thus stricken, ruined, degraded, open for a right royal "offer" and all its courtly prostitutions—to the contempt, pity, nay, worse still, the intimate friendship of crowned Europe! Depend upon it, they will not leave untried any means, unturned any stone, to destroy you. Their scheme is not even denied any longer. Aristocratic England and imperial France have left you no doubt about the nature of their intentions—fit articles for the paving of a certain low region. Home difficulties, and the hope of seeing you destroyed by your own hands, kept them from making as yet common cause with the "chivalrous" South, (have you remarked that this epithet, applied also to the Emperor of Austria, has generally been given to cavaliers of most dissolute character, indeed, to thoroughly tyrannical brutes?) but they have done what they could for a first step. While you sat there in proud self-possession, the admired of all true men, a cursed rebellion has provided European monarchism with the long-for opportunity to get a footing in your neighborhood, thence to throw the corrosive contents of the phial into the beauteous face of America.

Woe to the South, for the evil done by them to the cause of civilization! They have sinned in many different ways against the colored race, against the North, against the Union as a freely constituted government, but all these sins are venial in comparison to the great wrong done by them to mankind. They have, indeed, been traitors to human progress, for they have done their worst to foil and to destroy a great and successful experiment in the interest of the whole race. It is this high treason against mankind that History will record as their blackest, as their chief crime. The high significance of the problem was fully understood from the very starting moment of the American Union, by all sane men of all parties—by the hostile not less than by the friendly.

"It is impossible," wrote TURGOT, in 1782, to Dr. PRICE, respecting American affairs, "not to wish, most fervently, that this people may succeed in attaining the prosperity of which it is entirely susceptible. It is the hope of mankind, and may become its model. Its mission is to convince the world, by facts, that men can be free and at the same time tranquil, without those fetters which tyrants and charlatans seek to impose upon them, under the pretext of thereby securing the common safety."

Thus spoke the representative man of the friends of America. The enemies were not behind either in perspicuity, and their sentiments have been expressed by a man not unworthy of being opposed to that above-named most enlightened statesman of prerevolutionary France. Sir ROBERT KEITH, the British Minister, having expressed the satisfaction of his royal master at the order issued by Austria, prohibiting any intercourse between her subjects in the Low Countries and the "rebel colonies of America," JOSEPH II., then still a Crown Prince, made the following reply to that expression of thanks:

"In issuing this proclamation, and in making it as effectual as possible, Her Imperial Majesty, (MARIA THERESA,) has followed the impulse of that regard which she and all her family have ever felt for His Majesty. As for myself, I am extremely concerned at the difficulties which embarrass the King's Government. The cause in which England is engaged is the cause of all Sovereigns who have a just regard to the maintenance of our subordination and obedience to law in all the surrounding nationities. I observe with pleasure the vigorous exertions of national strength which the King is employing to bring his rebellious subjects to submission, and I concert with success to his measures."

Such were the morning salutes from friends and foes to the nascent Republic of America, and it is by the combined lights of this double manifestation, in the name of sublime expectations and low anxiety, of generous hopes and vile fear, that coming generations will severally straign the fleath of Mr. JEFFERSON DAVIS to the bar of judgment and ever renewing execration. It is not success to their fratricidal arms that they should pray for blasphemously, it is failure, speedy and thorough, in order that their future advocates in the courts of historic justice may claim at least their non-success as an argumentum ad misericordiam in that case of foulest treason, for which there are no mitigating circumstances to be found any where save in total defeat. Victory, indeed, however unprofitable to their so-called Confederacy, would "damn them to everlasting fame," the prosaic name for which is infamy. A triumphant issue for the South from the civil war not being imaginable without foreign, European, monarchical armed intervention to aid secession from the republican Union of democratic America, they must have actually started in their course of rebellion with the vile hope of a help that would dishonor them forever. It is impossible that there should be no men among them to see the disgraceful state in which they have been placed by their leaders. They ought to reflect upon the moral responsibility of supporting in any way a movement so nefarious in itself, and so injurious to all the best interests of their community. Terrorism, I know, may keep them from doing anything that is good and honorable, but they might, at any rate, refuse their coöperation in what is bad and degrading. They have as yet escaped the dark stain of receiving foreign help to dissolve a flourishing Union of free men, but they should no longer suffer themselves to be ranked amongst those who are degenerated enough to hope still for that only means of cursed success. It is high time for them to secede from secession.

But whatever Southern men, good, bad and indifferent, armed and disarmed, may do, you, Sir, of the North, should strain every nerve to terminate by all means, if necessary even by extermination, that war with the white slaves of black Slavery. There is no actual danger for you in the way of European intervention, but the coming year is full of great "probabilities." You may be quite sure of one thing, and it is this, that if we have no war here, you "will hear of something to your disadvantage" from that imperial advertiser of mysterious solutions, NAPOLEON III. In my next I shall speak of the Congress in Paris, and how it may affect yours in Washington.

I am, Sir, faithfully yours,

A PUBLICIST.

"GEN. ROSECRANS' RECORD"—CONDUCT OF THE WAR.

Semi-Official Statements of the Tribune—Their Total Inaccuracy—The Blunders of Telegraphic Generalship—Who was Responsible for the Disaster at Chickamauga.

THE RUSCHE, Saturday, Dec. 12, 1863.

It was with unmingled surprise that I read in the New-York Tribune, of the 5th inst., the statement entitled "Gen. ROSECRANS' Record," and with amazement that it was on the "best authority." What authority? Not, certainly, that of a mere newspaper reporter. Was it the War Department? Then why put it forth in this indirect and irresponsible manner? The War Department can command a Court of Inquiry at any moment, and if it believes half those assertions, justice imperatively demands it.

The charges of the Tribune may all be reduced to four—of which I shall speak with very briefest terms. I have no time for that military criticism which is now one of the great wants of the country.

1. The first grave charge is that Gen. ROSECRANS' delays of "offensive operations from Murfreesboro" was the original cause of the "September disaster." Now, I ask Gen. HALLECK, did he give any orders for the army to move? If he did not, did Gen. ROSECRANS delay one day beyond what, in the judgment of himself and his Generals, was necessary to the objects of the campaign? If the Army of the Cumberland is to be directed in the field by telegraphs from Washington, then the Telegraphic General at Washington is the responsible man. If it is not so directed, then why blame the General in command, (and his military council,) for acting according to his best judgment? That judgment may be wrong; but it is not the ground of impeachment. Justice requires that one side or the other of that dilemma should be taken.

2. The next specification is, that Gen. ROSECRANS never asked for reinforcements till the 11th of September. Here is the main point, and I will now show exactly where the responsibility rests. I will admit (for I don't know the truth about it) that ROSECRANS never asked for reinforcements; for it is altogether immaterial. Who was really directing the divisions, the proportions and the movements of the armies of the West? Does not "our correspondent" state repeatedly, and is it not one of the most notorious facts in the history of this war, that these movements, down to that of simple brigades, were all directed by telegraph from Washington? The telegraph companies report an average of three thousand military dispatches per day! I presume Gen. HALLECK would not think he had acted in his duty, if his genius and his industry had not been largely developed in that way. Well, the responsibility of directing the movements and reinforcements of troops from one army, and one part of the country to another, rests at Washington. Every military man in America knows that after the fall of Vicksburgh was the time to strike a fatal blow at the rebels. My letters on that subject are printed in the TIMES. GRANT had promised his officers a short furlough. Very well. Let them be ready by the 1st of August. That was ample time. On the 1st of August, two-thirds of GRANT's army should have marched to join ROSECRANS. This was as palpable, that one of the ablest Generals of the army said, before the fall of Vicksburgh, that GRANT's army should have reinforced ROSECRANS in the first place; for, to take Chattanooga, Atlanta, and the line of the Alabama River, was for the best mode of destroying the rebel armies. Let that be matter of opinion. It is not matter of opinion that a large part of GRANT's army was scattered in utterly worthless expeditions; that a part was marching in the swamps of Louisiana, and another part on the bayous of Arkansas, and the residue lingering on the banks of the Mississippi. To crown the whole, a new army is sent to waste its energies on the Rio Grande—capturing places that were never defended, and searching for armies that never existed. The neglect to concentrate the armies in July and August was the great military blunder of the year. That blunder belongs to Washington, and nowhere else. It has cost us six months of time, three hundred millions of dollars, and thousands of lives. It will be well if it teaches the military authorities more sense and less presumption.

3. The next charge is that Gen. ROSECRANS separated his corps "upon the fall of Chattanooga" 22 or 25 miles apart, and pursued the enemy instead of concentrating at Chattanooga. Here is where the facts are misrepresented totally. The cart is put before the horse. The corps of McCOOK and THOMAS had reached Valley Head and Johnson's Creek before BRAGG evacuated Chattanooga, and that movement was made to cause his evacuation. BRAGG did not evacuate that place till THOMAS had actually begun descending. It was precisely the fact that his communications would be cut off, which caused him to evacuate. The orders to pursue, which are complained of, were conditional. They were made in view of eventualities, as all such orders ought to be. They were dependent upon a reconnoissance about to be made. This was right, on military principles. As soon as the reconnoissance revealed that the enemy had made a stand, in the gaps of Pigeon Mountain, the concentration began. But, says the profound writer in the Tribune, this separation left those corps exposed to a flank movement, and brought the army into a general engagement, while "making a movement by the left flank." There is much simplicity in this. The three corps were already separated to cause BRAGG's evacuation, and had to be got together in any event whatsoever. The only question was, In what way, and by what route? The General of the Tribune says they ought to have gone by Lookout Valley. Gen. ROSECRANS thought they ought to go on the other side. Any one who has a topographical map, will see that they were just as liable to attack on one side as the other. In fact, THOMAS's corps, by marching all night of the 18th, got into the intended position on the road from Gordon's Mill to Rossville, and from that position were never driven. CRITTENDEN and McCOOK got into position also. The Tribune says Gen. ROSECRANS blames Gen. WOOD with a failure to come into position. I know nothing of that. The fact is Gen. WOOD did not fill the gap he was ordered to; but it was most probably caused by a misunderstanding, and the falling back of other troops, who had changed their positions.

4. The last, and the most serious charge is, that Gen. R. disobeyed HALLECK's orders. I have only to say I don't believe a word of it. All the evidence is the other way. If HALLECK gave any such orders he can produce them, and it will satisfy the public mind better than to have it sifted and insinuated through newspaper reporters. Mind, the Tribune says, "Specific instructions from Gen. HALLECK." I am told, by those who know, that HALLECK sent orders (by telegraph)—the general purport of which was that the campaign should terminate at Chattanooga. He did not, and could not, direct what special movements of corps should be made to obtain that end in the best mode. It might, in certain contingencies, be far the best mode of attaining that object to drive BRAGG beyond Rome, had that been possible. The mode and time in which the commander of the army should concentrate his troops, must, if anything at all is left to him, be left to the discretion of the commander. If it be not, then woe betide an army that is directed in that way.

The last assertion is that "had Gen. ROSECRANS carried out Gen. Halleck's instructions, the loyal people would never have had to mourn over a disaster to the Army of the Cumberland." The loyal people of the North are of a very different opinion. The loyal army is of a different opinion; and if the War Department doubts that, they have the power at any moment to summon Gen. THOMAS, Gen. ROUSSEAU, Gen. GRANGER, or any of the officers of that gallant army, to give their testimony. Gen. GARFIELD, who was Chief of the Staff, is now in Congress—a man of abilities and character. Perhaps he will testify without being summoned. The gallant soldiers of that army—who have been on many a battle-field—have some sense, and some intelligence. They are not Generals, but they can discern very clearly where the truth of this matter lies—and are not to be deceived by the vapid vaporing of ignorant and malicious critics.

I write this article with a melancholy feeling, that this great Government—the resources of this mighty nation—this glorious people—are not directed by the mind, the genius and the character which they had a right to command. In times like these, the best abilities of the country, in all departments, should be brought forth. Is that the fact?

I do not resort to the War Department for information, nor do I write to elevate Gen. ROSECRANS. My information is derived from the army, and my motive is, in my humble way, to vindicate justice. It will be necessary before the war ends to enter upon a criticism of military measures, and if my time and strength permit, I hope to add my contribution to that volume.

A VETERAN OBSERVER.

Death of Maj. Jarvis of Vermont.

The following are as nearly as we can ascertain the painful facts concerning the death of Maj. CHARLES JARVIS, of the Ninth Vermont volunteers, killed in an encounter with the enemy near Newport barracks, North Carolina.

It appears that depredations having been committed on loyal citizens beyond our lines by some of the Union cavalry, and especially by "one mounted on a gray horse," Col. KELLY, commander of the post, unable to identify the guilty party, directed Maj. JARVIS to proceed at 9 A. M., on Dec. 1, with a cavalry escort of all the gray horses in the command, to a house five or six miles outside the cavalry outposts, to investigate the affair, identify the plunder by the help of the citizens, and then return. Once beyond our lines, it seems Maj. JARVIS threw out one or two of his commands a short distance in the advance, and followed, riding himself about forty rods ahead of the main body. Suddenly, several shots were fired, when he perceived the skirmisher in his front, (a very young and gallant fellow whose name we regret not to know,) engaging a rebel party of three dismounted cavalry. Seeing the odds, the Major cried out: "Go in, and I'll support you," and dashing ahead on his fleet horse, he fired three shots from his revolver, and reigning his horse up over the rebel party, commanded their surrender. These, however, not seeing probably but two opponents, leveled their pieces together at the Major and fired—two of their bullets taking effect, one in his hand, cutting his bridle-rein, and one in the lower part of the abdomen, knocking him off his horse. The young soldier now at his side, having the man who had fired the mortal shot in his power, asked if he should kill him. "No," replied the Major, "he is a soldier—take him prisoner." Two of the rebels had now escaped, one was secured, and the Major, placed again on his horse, was moved slowly toward camp. After riding about a mile he became too exhausted to sit on his horse, when he was placed in a cart, and being met by the Colonel, (who on hearing the news, had, with his chaplain, surgeon and escort, ridden out 12 miles from camp in 50 minutes to his aid,) was conveyed to the nearest house to die. Every attention was paid him. He suffered great pain, appeared conscious his wound was mortal, became easier about an hour before his death, and about 10½ o'clock that night passed away like one going to sleep.

"There is," writes Col. KELLY, "a settled, subdued air of sadness all about us to-night throughout the command; such as one as I have never known before under circumstances of the kind." Officers and men all seemed equally to lament their loss. Resolutions were drawn up expressing the loftiest admiration and love for their lamented comrade, and his remains, attended by a suitable escort under Capt. BASSETT, were conveyed to his home at Weatherafield, and interred on Sunday, 13th inst.

NATIONAL ASSESSMENTS.

The Convention of Assessors at Cleveland—Reforms Suggested.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

CLEVELAND, Friday, Dec. 18, 1863.

The Convention of Assessors in session in this city for three days past, adjourned this afternoon, and the members are hurrying off to their respective States and districts this evening, to be followed by the others to-morrow morning. It has been eminently a working Convention. Never, perhaps, has a Convention considered, discussed and disposed of so much business, of so much public importance, in so short a time. They ate no idle bread while here. On Thursday last they met at 9 o'clock in the morning, worked hard till 2 o'clock P. M., when they adjourned for dinner; reassembled at 3 and worked till 7; sat down to a banquet at 8, where speeches, toasts and songs were said and sung till after 11 o'clock, when, instead of ending as most such occasions do, in prolonged dissipation, they reassembled in the parlor of the hotel, and worked till after 2 o'clock this morning, and at 10 this morning they were at work finishing up all their business in time for the afternoon cars.

These Assessors have made a very favorable impression on the public mind in this their first Convention. They are generally tall, well-built men, above the average size, and are remarkably intelligent-looking men. Their meeting has not been discussed beforehand in any of the papers, and some guesses and much curious inquiry were made by citizens and travelers as to what could be the object of it. Their meeting carries with it the idea of weight. Almost every man among them has raised or assessed, on an average, a million or half a million of dollars a year for the Government. They are literally a body of millionaires. The citizens of Cleveland have been much pleased with their visit. Rev. Mr. GOODMAN, son of the late Prof. GOODRICH, of Yale College, Pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Cleveland, was present to open the Convention with prayer, and the papers of the city have generally spoken in praise of their books and labors.

When the Secretary was calling the roll of the Convention by States, and Kentucky and Virginia answered "Here" by their Assessors, the hall rang with applause; and the most distant hints at anything like sectional or local interests, leading to clashing interests, were carefully avoided. Fifteen States were represented by about eighty or ninety Assessors.

The objects of the Convention were to bring together the united experience of the Assessors of the whole country, and in the light of that experience to make such suggestions to Congress through the Commissioner as will lead to more uniformity of taxation and an increased amount of revenue, by judicious amendments. Most of the work was done in committees, and the reports of the committees being discussed and amended, were unanimously adopted, and are to be embodied in a printed pamphlet, to be submitted to the Commissioner, and through him to Congress. There were nine committees, of five members each, appointed to report upon so many different classes of amendments. The reports on Licenses, of which PIERRE C. VAN WYCK, of New-York, was Chairman, recommend that banks, insurance companies and mercantile agencies, pay a license of $100. That auctioneers doing a small business might be licensed as low as $5, and should be allowed to practice anywhere in the State where licensed. That retail and wholesale dealers in liquors should be divided into more numerous grades, from $50 upward, (an amendment to make liquor-dealers of sales of less than $1,000 a year, subject to a $10 license, moved by W. E. ROBINSON, of New-York, being voted down.) Retail dealers whose annual sales range between $500 and $1,000 to pay a license of $5, the lowest now being $10. Retailers of liquors to pay 20 cents a gallon, and report monthly to the Assessor. Lawyers, brokers, &c., to be licensed as individuals and not as firms. Canal-boats, barges and vessels, to be subject to a license of $3 for 50 tons, and $5 for every additional 100 tons. That lottery ticket dealers should pay $100 instead of as at present, $1,000, and that gift enterprises pay $50. Boarding-house keepers, from $10 to $50, according to the rental. Produce dealers, $10; agents of foreign insurance companies, $50; fish peddlers, $6; drayman, &c., $2 each; drays, &c., (wagon-peddlers,) $10; intelligence-office keepers, $10; conveyancers, $10; barbers, $5 to $10; race-course keepers, $100.

These are a few of the more prominent changes recommended, in addition to those in the Report of the Commissioner, which were indorsed by the Convention.

The Committee of which WILLIAM E. ROBINSON, of New-York was Chairman, and to which the subject of increased pay for Assessors and Assistant Assessors, and the subject of an improved mode of taxing fermented and smoking spirits, oils, and tobacco, reported; that as to the pay of Assessors, the Convention would leave that to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and to the enlightened judgment of Congress. For Assistant Assessors, who have to keep offices in cities, and travel by horse or wagon in the country, pay of four dollars a day, and ten cents each taxable name, is recommended; and that Assessors should have the assessing of spirits, tobacco, and oils under their control. Without this the assessment of these articles, under the increased rates, would be impossible. This report, with the resolutions appended, were adopted without alteration and by acclamation.

The Committee on Income, &c., of which J. H. RAYMILL, of Ohio, was Chairman, recommended that income derived from gas, bridge, canal, turnpike, express, telegraph, telephone, ferry-boats and manufacturing companies be subject to tax. That the Assessors should commence taking income returns in January of each year, instead of May. That the sum exempted from income tax should be $600 instead of $600. Incomes under $5,000 3 per cent.; between $5,000 and $10,000, 4 per cent.; between $10,000 and $20,000, 5 per cent. and over $20,000, 7½ per cent. Rents to $150 to be deducted.

The Committee of which E. F. CHASE, of Pennsylvania, was Chairman, on Equalization of Taxes, reported that allowances for repairs, &c., be not allowed on income, nor taxes on unproductive property, and that an increased and more equal taxation on manufactures of stone, be recommended; stone in the rough only to be exempt. The amendment of March last, taxing jailors, &c., on order work, at 5 per cent. be repealed.

The Committee on Manufactures, of which G. F. PUMSLEY, of New-York, was Chairman, made a very lengthy report which created much discussion. It recommends an increase of tax on tobacco and many other articles. Horse-shoe nails made by hand are recommended for exemption. Native wines are to be taxed higher, and many articles now exempt, such as ice cream, are to be taxed 3 per cent.

The report from the Committee on Spirits, &c., led to a long debate. As finally accepted a tax of one-eighth of one per cent. on the gross amount of all sales of all commodities made elsewhere than at the place of manufacture is recommended, if over $1,000 per annum. The tax on malt liquors to be 60 cents per barrel, as now, but 30 cents a bushel on malt, and that the use of substitutes for malt be made a penal offence. The tax on spirits to be 60c. per gallon from March till July 1864, and afterward to be raised to 75 cents, and finally to one dollar a gallon.

Other reports of less importance, or recommending less important amendments, on stamps, &c., were made, discussed and adopted.

A series of resolutions acknowledging the uniform courtesy with which the people comply with the tax laws, was adopted. A letter from the Comptroller, Hon. JOHN J. LAWS, was read by M. F. Downs, Esq., Chief Clerk of the Department, who, with Mr. EDDY, formerly Acting Commissioner, had been invited to seats in the Convention, and a vote of thanks to Judge LAWS was unanimously adopted.

The Assessors will probably make these Conventions annual, and have voted to meet next year in Cincinnati.

P. S.—Dec. 19.—I am on my way home by the Erie Railroad. On the train are Major-Gen. BENJAMIN and staff, who go through to New-York city, arriving to-morrow. We stop to dine at Piffard-avenue Hotel. The people are meeting him at the different depots with phaetons and sleds, in order to be the first to greet him.

ANNUAL NEW-ENGLAND DINNER.

Anniversary of the Landing of the Pilgrims.

Speeches by Henry Ward Beecher, Rev. Dr. Blagden, Gen. Dix, Gen. Sickles, Admiral Farragut, Wm. Evarts, Esq., Rev. Dr. Tyng, Rev. Dr. Bellows, Hon. Henry Ward Beecher, Hon. Dr. Wolcott, Gen. Stolbrand, Judge Rockwell, Gen. Hay, Judge Hoadly, and Wm. M. Evarts (Humorous and Sentimental Speeches by the Gentlemen Named, and others.)

The New-England Society in the City of New-York, celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary by a dinner at the Astor House, yesterday, in commemoration of the landing of the Pilgrims on the Rock of Plymouth. The occasion was distinguished by the presence of a large number of distinguished men, and by the delivery of speeches of a character which will long be remembered by those who were present. The dinner was served in the Long Room, which was handsomely decorated with the flags of the Union, and with the emblems of the various New-England societies. The tables were arranged in the form of a letter U, and were well filled with the sons of the Pilgrims, who numbered about 300. The President, Mr. Henry Ward Beecher, presided, and on his right and left were seated the following gentlemen: Hon. John P. Hale, United States Minister from New-Hampshire, Rev. Dr. Wolcott, Gen. Stolbrand, Judge Rockwell, Gen. Hay, Judge Hoadly, and Wm. M. Evarts (Humorous and Sentimental Speeches by the Gentlemen Named, and others.)

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

RACHEL RAY. A Novel. By Anthony Trollope, Author of "Orley Farm," "Rachel Ray," &c. 8vo. New-York.

By what secret magic [illegible] such as Mr. TROLLOPE describes [illegible] his American Travels—middle-aged, portly, florid, bald-headed, and red-faced, has acquired his inimitable knowledge of the workings of the female heart, it is, we fear, in vain to inquire. That he possesses it no one can deny. Young ladies are to him what moss-troopers were to SCOTT, sentimental tapestry-work to BULWER or MISS AUSTEN, to MARRYAT. Their hopes, fears, loves, embarrassments, joys and disappointments, form the staple of his stories, and are depicted with the vividness of natural truth. No English writer but MISS AUSTEN can be compared to him in this respect, and even she yields to Mr. TROLLOPE in [illegible] which the minor details, and consequently the truer pictures, of woman can scarcely be trusted to political journals, the action of powers implied during [illegible] behind the scenes, where [illegible] in their attempted [illegible] the actors. Rachel Ray is a pretty domestic story, without much pretension to [illegible] but what it [illegible] with the daily life of a [illegible] English country district, [illegible] poverty, sap with [illegible] the [illegible] of the opulent who frequent the adjacent watering-place, but the greater part of the plot turns on the opposition of those who frequent the [illegible] to the marriage of the heroine with a young clergyman, who is a [illegible] of the [illegible] of the village. The [illegible] of the story, however, is [illegible] and the [illegible] of the [illegible] are [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] of the [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] of the [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] of the party without due process of law. As there was [illegible] per cent. difference between the value of the money which was offered to pay off the debt and the value of gold, [illegible] such portion of the debt as would be the difference between gold and paper. The third subdivision of the 25th section of the Judiciary Act [illegible] provision which gave to the Supreme Court jurisdiction in all cases involving a law or treaty under the Constitution. The first subdivision of that section seems mainly devised to protect acts of Congress from hostile State judiciaries and local or State misconstruction, and to insure uniformity of decision, but it was never intended to take away from the highest Federal Court the power of review where any right, privilege or exemption under the Constitution or Federal laws was involved, nor to deprive the citizen of such appeal in suits embracing constitutional principles even when the amount in question is insignificant.

Mr. Roelker, in reply, denied that the party had been deprived of any property. The right of the plaintiff in error was simply a choose in action, a debt arising on contract. A debt was distinct from a chattel or demand, which is a right to a specific article. If Congress had passed a law transferring tangible property from one man to another, the claim here would plainly be good; but a chose in action is not generally called property, unless it be made so by special statute, as in New-York. It could not be levied upon under an execution, nor could an attachment be laid on it. It therefore was not such a right of property as the Judiciary Act contemplated.

The Court held the motion under advisement.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

THE PASSPORT SYSTEM FOR AMERICAN VESSELS

United States Detectives to Examine the Passengers and Crews of all Outward-bound Vessels—The System to Take Effect To-Day.

Instructions were received by United States Marshal Murray, yesterday, from Washington, directing him not to allow any American vessel to leave this port without a permit signed by him, certifying that the persons on board had passed under his inspection and were properly vouched for. The instructions were received at 2 o'clock in the morning, and are supposed to have been the result of a Cabinet meeting at midnight on Monday. The Secretary of State was given charge of the matter, and we assured by the Secretaries of War and Navy that every possible aid at their command should be extended to him. Accordingly, Rear-Admiral Paulding received instructions from the Navy Department to station a vessel off the bar at Sandy Hook, and another at Throgg's Neck, with orders to detain every outward-bound American vessel not having a pass duly signed by the United States Marshal, certifying that her passengers and crew had been examined by his officers, and that she was permitted to depart on her voyage.

At 6 o'clock last evening two vessels of war proceeded down the bay and took up the positions assigned to them.

Notice was given the owners or agents of the principal lines of steamers and sailing craft as to the intentions of the Government, and they were at the same time assured by Marshal Murray that the business would be conducted in a manner to make as little delay as possible.

The introduction to the Marshal direct him to place United States Detectives on board every American vessel, with orders to look after all persons having arms or contraband correspondence, and to arrest any such which they may be found. All such persons will be sent to Fort Warren. After such inspection has been made to the satisfaction of the Government officials, the vessels will be provided with the proper pass permitting them to depart. The officers assigned to this duty will be instructed to perform it in as gentle a manner as possible, and will not be allowed to receive any money for any passe from parties on board. The passes will be given without expense, whether the officers find anything them, blank forms having already been prepared at the Marshal's office.

These regulations do not apply to vessels navigating the sound or the rivers, but only to those going seaward by the bay of the Sound or Sandy Hook.

In the performance of the confidential duties assigned him by these new instructions from Washington, Marshal Murray is authorized to call upon Maj.-Gen. Dix, commanding the Department of East, and Rear-Admiral Paulding, commanding the naval station at this port, for any assistance he may require to enforce the above regulations.

The owners and agents of the principal lines of steamers assured Marshal Murray yesterday that they were pleased at the measures adopted by the Government, and that they would themselves carefully examine all parties, passengers or crews, going on board their vessels, and further, that they would provide the Marshal with small rooms for their accommodation, security and protection. The steamers Ariel and Illinois, for California, which sail to-day, will be the first to go outunder the new regulations.

THE JULY RIOTERS.

Trial of William Cruise for Felonious Assault upon a Negro.

COURT OF OYER AND TERMINER—BEFORE JUSTICE SUTHERLAND.

The trial of William Cruise, one of the July rioters, was continued yesterday morning.

George Yeat, sworn for the prosecution—Was at No. 11 Worth-street on the evening of July 14; saw the crowd break into No. 11 Worth-street, and drag out the body.

Cross-examined—Did not see William Cruise there.

Jacob H. Mitchell, sworn for the prosecution—Lives at No. 11 Worth-street; was there on the 14th of July; saw the crowd there; did not recognize any one but Mr. Bush.

Cross-examined—Have not seen any of the others since.

Julia Hickabil, sworn for the prosecution—Was at No. 11 Worth; saw the crowd beating the negro; cannot recognize Cruise.

Patrick Finkle, sworn for the prosecution—Was in Worth-street on the 14th; saw the crowd dragging out the negro; Cruise looks like the man who was leading the mob.

Officer Field, sworn for the prosecution—On the evening of the 14th was around the Ward in citizens' dress; saw Cruise fire a pistol; he wants his shirt, however, he was dressing in disguise.

David Derricksen swore for the prosecution—The evidence of this witness was not substantial.

The prosecution here rested and the counsel opened the case for the defence.

Ann Brown, sworn for the defence, testified that she was in Cruise's store from 6 o'clock until 11½ o'clock, and swore that Cruise did not leave his store during the entire evening.

Father Quin, sworn for the defence, testified that he had known the prisoner for six years, and that he had always borne an excellent character for benevolence and sobriety.

Martin McKelvey, sworn for the prosecution, testified to being in Mr. Cruise's store all the evening of the 14th of July, and swore that Cruise did not leave the store during the evening, except to go across the the street.

John Harrison, sworn for the defence, testified to Cruise's character for sobriety and good conduct.

Martin Gagne, sworn for the defence, testified that he was in Cruise's store on the evening of July 14; Cruise was in the store all the evening.

Col. Mason, sworn for the defence, testified to the good character of the prisoner.

James Cruise, sworn for the defence, testified that he was in Cruise's store all the evening; Cruise did not leave the store.

The defence here rested.

Mr. Spencer addressed the jury in behalf of the prisoner in a lengthy and forcible argument.

At the conclusion of his remarks the Court adjourned to this morning at 10 o'clock.

The Mist Damages Committee.

WHAT HAS BEEN DONE—WHAT HAS BEEN LEFT UNDONE—WHAT REMAINS FOR THEM TO DO.

On Tuesday week the Supervisors requested this Committee to make a detailed report of the persons they employ, and what compensation they allow them; what number of claims they had audited; at what amounts; what the original amounts of the claims were; what claims they had rejected, &c. On last Friday it was stated in the Board that the Committee had prepared the desired report, but that it wanted one more signature before it could be presented, whereupon it was suggested and assented to that the report should go over for presentation at the next meeting. This was held yesterday, but the report was not presented. Instead of it, however, the reporters were furnished with the following synopsis of the work of the Committee by their chief clerk, Mr. S. C. Hammond: Number of claims presented, 5,317; number examined, 1,826; number advertised and no appearance made, 207; number reported favorably, 757; omitted at $252,556 76; original amount of these claims, $700,242 21; reported unfavorably on 69 claims, amounting to $17,157 60. In addition to this the Committee have examined and reported the pay-rolls of the various regiments on service during the riot, and the bills for rations furnished the military.

The claims audited include nearly all those of great magnitude. The Committee intend to finish

[illegible]

Naval Movements.

ANOTHER SUCCESSFUL "CONVERSION."

The famous prize Peterhoff was yesterday put in commission at the Brooklyn Navy-yard as a thorough man-of-war, having gone through the process of "conversion" in the most successful manner. No one who saw the vessel when she arrived here in charge of the prize officer, could dream of her being turned into so formidable a looking ship as she is to-day. All the mercantile features have been replaced by a regular man-of-war aspect, and the weak timbers have been replaced by very sound and strong ones. When the Peterhoff came to the Navy-yard she was very much out of repair, besides being no more than an ordinary merchant steamer, having very good engines and reputed to be very fast. She was immediately taken in hand by the authorities of the yard, and a survey was held upon her to demonstrate the amount of work to be done on her in effecting her "conversion" into a regular naval vessel. The survey estimate having been approved of, workmen were put on her. Her decks were newly laid down, her bulwarks strengthened and braced in the strongest manner, a whole suite of lower apartments put in her, an excellent wardroom and officers' mess quarters organized, and first-rate accommodations for the crew arranged. Of course this took a long time to effect, and it is only yesterday that the vessel came into Navy-yard dock. The guard of marines marched down to her at 1 p'clock, the crew from the North Carolina went on board at the same hour, and at a few minutes afterward the Stars and Stripes were hoisted from her peak. She will now receive her coals and provisions and leave for entire service in a few days. She has been painted, the regulation color and presents the appearance of a regular navy built clipper corvette. She is as sharp forward as the blade of a knife, yet she has excellent beam envelopes.

RAISING THE WRECKWOOD.

We stated a few days since, that Mr. Wheeler, builder of the Keokuk, had contracted with the Government to raise the iron-clad Weehawken. This is a mistake. The Messrs. Jessup & Hiestus, of this City, are the parties who have made arrangements to raise the vessel. The mistake occurred from the fact that Mr. Wheeler is associated with the gentlemen named in raising the iron-clad Keokuk—not because he is a wrecker himself, or knows anything about such business, but on account of his intimacy of the construction of the Keokuk. We are informed that the work of raising the copper of the Atlanta will soon be commenced and prosecuted with vigor. The last news from the Keokuk stated that her smokestack was above water, and that the process of getting her afloat was going on successfully. It is stated that the Navy Department will see that the relatives and friends of the officers and crew of the Weehawken shall receive the money due to them.

DISCOVERY OF SERIOUS FRAUDS AT THE NAVY-YARD.

Within the past few days the Government authorities at the Navy-yard have discovered serious frauds, the nature and origin of which are now being investigated by naval officers. A Naval Board convened

RAILROAD CROSS AND PRIZE MONEY.

A Member of Congress from the City of New-York has concluded to lay a resolution before Congress, the effect of which will be the restoration of grog in the Navy, and a prompt and immediate disbursement of the prize money due to sailors. Several seamen, formerly of the United States Navy, waited on this gentleman the evening before last, and laid before him the statement of their case. They gave him a full account of the grievances under which they suppose themselves to labor. The following is a brief synopsis of their view of the case: They stated that the Secretary of the Navy has broken faith with them in several ways. First, in passing a law lately prohibiting sailors from being relieved when their time expired. Men are nominally enlisted for a year, and leave their families with the intention of returning at that time. When they are thousands of miles from home, however, an order is issued from the Navy Department, in obedience to which the contract with the men is broken, and they are kept on many months as the Secretary deems proper beyond their time. They next alluded to the stoppage of their grog, and stated that in cold and Wintry weather, at sea and in port, their grog always exhilirated and never injured them. They also stated that since the stoppage of grog smuggling and drunkenness have increased to a fearful extent. They then referred to their prize money, and repeated at length the facts, the substance of which was given in a report of the sailors' meeting some time since. Another object of their complaint was the lack of liberty on shore. Some of their friends, they stated, had been eight, ten and twelve months on board ship, never being allowed on shore for one moment. This incarceration is said to have injured the men in several ways. The M. C. promised to have the matter properly attended to, and to have their cause represented in the National Legislature.

DEPARTURE OF UNITED STATES SAILORS.

A very large draft of United States regular sailors, landsmen, ordinary seamen and boys, left the United States receiving ship North Carolina yesterday, at the Brooklyn Navy-yard, in a side-wheel steamer, for some unknown destination. They were cheered on leaving the ship, and returned the cheers with interest. They were accompanied by officers and marines.

THE PHILADELPHIA NAVY-YARD.

The United States supply steamer Bermuda, Acting Volunteer Lieut. J. W. Smith, commanding, which sailed from this port Nov. 5, arrived at the Navy-yard late on Sunday evening, from the West Gulf Squadron. The Bermuda, she has war up, experienced heavy weather. She passed off Charleston during a fog, and brings no news of importance. During the trip the Bermuda captured several prizes. Among them was the schooner Antonia, laden with a valuable cargo of cotton. The following is a list of her officers:

Lieutenant Commanding, J. W. Smith; Acting Master, J. L. Lee, as Executive Officer; Acting Assistant Paymaster, T. McCauly Brown; Assistant Surgeon, J. B. Ackley; Sailing Masters, Ensign R. R. Warren, Acting Ensigns H. C. Raymond and J. M. Richards; Acting First Assistant Engineer, P. Brewster; Acting Second Assistant Engineers, J. Cooper and Geo. W. Bradford; Acting Third Assistant Engineers, Thos. Lloyd, John M. King, D. Morris; Acting Master's Mates, H. L. Dunbar, Ed. Dooley; Captain's Clerk, Robert Priest; Paymaster's Clerk, Philip A. Bird, and H. B. Taylor; Mail Agent, Wm. G. Smith; Yeoman, Thos. D. Harry.

The gunboat James Adger, Capt. Patterson, arrived at the navy-yard from Fortress Monroe, which place she left on the 10th. The Adger was attached to the South Atlantic Squadron. She carries nine guns, and comes for repairs.

A Bold Attempt at Highway Robbery.

Last Saturday afternoon, a young lady, the daughter of a well-known citizen residing up town, was shopping on Third avenue, between Fifteenth and Fifty-first streets. One of her hands was employed, and she wore a very valuable diamond ring, which fact the sequel will show is pertinent to the story. After visiting several stores the lady walked to Forty-ninth street, passing through it toward the Sixth avenue. When between the Fifth and Sixth avenues she was checked by a pull on her cloak, and accosted by a young and genteelly-dressed man, who said, pointing to her hand—"I'll take that ring you have on, and your money, and watch if you have one." The lady was, naturally enough, startled and alarmed, and quickened her pace, the villain following and renewing his demand. She told him to leave her, or that he would be delivered to a policeman. He replied—"Scream if you dare! He is but a policeman in sight." The lady hurried on, and he still followed, reiterating his order for the valuables. On the lady reaching and turning into Sixth-avenue, the thief, deterred by the number of people there, fled. He evidently had seen the lady on the Third-avenue, had noted the ring, and laid in wait to follow and rob her. The block selected was just the one for his purpose; there are few houses on it, and few passers through. The lady anxiously looked for the appearance of a gentleman during the rallying, following, from whom she could claim protection, but not one, unfortunately, was on the street, and but two persons, both old ladies, were met. The self-possession of the intended victim was most commendable. This act is a bold one, and such a one as has been recorded; it was perpetrated in broad daylight, in a thoroughfare. Ladies are, by the story of it, cautioned against similar cases, and forewarned to exhibit similar courage and self-possession to that displayed by the young lady in question.

United States Circuit Court—Dec. 22.

Before Judge Shipman.

The Grand Jury were impanelled this morning, and were thereupon charged as to their duties by the Judge. After referring to the limitation imposed upon them, that the offences which they would consider must be made such by statute of the United States, he proceeded to charge them about murder on the high seas, mutiny on shipboard, cruel and unusual punishment of seamen, wilfully casting away vessels, and perjury. The rest of his charge was as follows:

"A class of offences will be submitted to your attention, involving charges of presenting false, forged, altered or counterfeited claims or writings to Government officers, with intent to defraud the United States, knowing them to be false and fraudulent; procuring, making, or printing false affidavits in support of such, or any other claims, or procuring signatures thereto by fraud. It is quite time that this class of depredators upon the public treasury were taught that they cannot ply their trade with impunity. The immense and varied operations of the Government, in the line of activity in every department of the public service, has greatly multiplied the temptations and opportunities of those who dishonestly seek for gain at the expense of their country; and while caution should be observed to avoid charging the innocent, you will, I am sure, agree with me that the most unsparing vigilance should be exercised in bringing the guilty to punishment. It will be the duty of the District-Attorney, as I know it will be his pleasure, to furnish you with every facility which the law has provided for ferreting out this class of frauds. And should cases be presented to you on which are fabricate and involve numerous transactions, you will not hesitate to devote to them all the time and labor which may be necessary to sift them thoroughly, and ascertain their true character, and for this purpose you will at all times be at liberty to call on the District-Attorney, who will see that all persons are summoned before you, who, in your opinion, can shed light on the subject of your inquiries.

Making, passing or attempting to pass, with a guilty knowledge, counterfeit Treasury notes and postal currency, or fraudulently altering the same, are also offences which will come before you. These crimes, owing to the increased circulation of this currency, more extensively affect the public than formerly, and like counterfeits of small coin in former days, often entail loss on those who are little able to bear it. In addition, therefore, to the ordinary demands for public security against crime of all kinds, the necessities and wrongs of the poor who are struggling to maintain honest livelihood call upon Courts and juries for protection and redress against this class of offenders.

There are several offenses upon the list against the [illegible] Bank, and at the Treasury office, the latter in daily receipt of a sufficient sum of Legal Tender currency for the Popular Loan to meet the requisitions of the Department at Washington. There is no present material accumulation of the currency balance in the New-York office. The Gold balance continues to accumulate from the Customs receipts. It is now over twelve millions, and will be quite as much by the time the payments on the January interest on the Public Debt is through with. The whole sum of Gold required from July 1, last, to June 30, 1864, to pay the interest upon the Funded and Bundable Debt of the United States is $41,000,000. The receipts in Gold for Customs in the same period will certainly more than double this requisition, and from the present look of our Import movement it is not improbable that one hundred millions in Gold will be received for Customs within the current fiscal year.

The demand for Money at 7 ⅌ cent. from the Brokers is active, but not especially urgent. The speculative sellers of Stocks on the future of the Money Market, start various suggestions as to the effect of the popular subscriptions to the 5-20 years' Loan; and also as to the employment of the interest-bearing Legal Tender soon to be introduced through the Associated Banks and from the Treasury Department direct. The immediate suggestion is, that as the unsubscribed balance to the Popular Loan runs down to fifty millions, there may be a rush for this balance, which will contract or distress the Bank movement. But there is no sign yet of such a rush beyond two or two and a half millions ⅌ day. When evidence is brought to the attention of the Secretary that Money may be pressed upon or into his New-York office on this account faster than he can employ it, or to the prejudice of the steady working of the Money market, it is not improbable that he will authorize his Loan Agent and the Assistant Treasurer in New-York to receive subscriptions to the remaining balance to be paid by installments, as the Money may be wanted, conditioned that five or ten ⅌ cent. be lodged for the Security of such subscriptions. This course would, no doubt, be deemed preferable to receiving from any party or any combination of parties an offer to take the balance of the Loan, which from the start has been left open to popular competition.

The receipts at the Treasury office, to-day, for the Popular Loan, are $1,691,204, and on Deposit at 5 ⅌ cent., $304,000. The Customs in Gold are $329,000. The balances in the office are $1,222,000 higher than yesterday.

The Stock Market opened this forenoon with a disposition to weaker prices, the same as manifested late in the day on Monday. The differences in the early sales at the First Board from the closing quotations last night were not important, and as the business went on toward the Second Board the feeling on the Railway list was somewhat firmer. At the Second Board the improvement was quite decided, particularly on Erie shares, which were done at 107¼, as against 106¾@106⅞ in the forenoon. The Western Roads were also better.

At 4 o'clock the following prices were made in comparison with Monday night, the general market leaving off steady, and on most Railway descriptions quite firm. Gold has not varied much through the day. It leaves off 152⅞ ⅌ cent. There was a rise of 6 ⅌ cent. in Mariposa Gold Company:

The report of the Erie Railway Company, made to the State Engineer to the 30th September, the figures of which we published in our last paper, corresponds in date and the number of months reported on, with the recent New-York Central report, made to the Stockholders as well as to the State Engineer. The fiscal year, proper, of the Erie terminates on 31st December, and the report to the Stockholders will embrace the calendar year, 1863. It may be that the latter will show a less favorable state of things in the economical working of the road than the report to the State Engineer. But this will not alter the present contrast with the New-York Central, which is certainly important to the general railway interest of the country, as showing that the increase of the ratio of expenses to New-York Central—from 59.35 to 62.50 ⅌ cent.—may be the exception, and not the rule for the Railway reports generally for the year 1863. The increase of the ratio of expenses on the Erie is only from 58½ to 59½ ⅌ cent., and on a larger proportion of Freight to Passenger traffic than on the Central. We believe the Erie will be found much nearer the true standard for judging the net results of the year 1863 on the carefully-conducted Roads of the West. We have reason also to believe that the Pennsylvania Central will also show that the enhanced ratio of expenses of the New-York Central is the exception, and not the rule of the year.

The following are the comparative figures of the two New-York Roads:

NEW-YORK CENTRAL AND ERIE ROADS—1863.

Sept. 30, 1863.	Central.	Erie.
Freight earnings	$7,435,909	$6,422,224
Passenger earnings	2,930,541	1,979,003
Miscellaneous	321,361	243,000
Total for Railroad year	$10,687,811	$10,646,117
Operating expenses	6,682,633	6,067,036
Net income	$4,004,978	$4,180,476

This statement is every point of contrast in which it can be viewed certainly tells against the economical administration of the Central property, if not against the integrity of the rate of expenditure. It also relieves the general Railway business of the country from the apprehension that a year of unexampled prosperity, both as to the volume and rates of traffic is to yield less substantial fruits to the Shareholders than last year. With the same fairness and economy of administration, this contrast should have been in favor of the Central Company. The advantage is with it in Passenger traffic and Miscellaneous income by $1,648,000. These items, taken together, are known to involve a much lower rate of expense than the Freight traffic. Of the latter the Erie reports $997,000 more than the Central. On all the items together, the Erie earns more on a gross of $10,746,000 than the Central on a gross of $10,897,000, by $133,481.

The week's exports of Domestic Produce and Miscellaneous Goods (exclusive of Specie) from this port, were to the value of $2,608,113 against $3,457,636 same week last year, and $4,195,853 the corresponding week of 1861.

The business at the office of the Assistant Treasurer, to-day, were: Receipts, $2,694,892 62; Customs, $329,000; Payments, $1,472,603 20; Balance, $27,076,684 86.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

We publish this morning a very interesting batch of intercepted rebel correspondence, which fell into the hands of the Navy Department last week, through the capture of the blockade-runner Ceres, which was driven ashore at Wilmington and set on fire by the rebels, but which floated off in a storm which followed, and was secured by our fleet. Before the vessel was burned, a boat's crew from one of our ships boarded her and secured the baggage and papers of Col. C. A. P. LAMAR, general rebel agent in Europe for the purchase of vessels and war material. Several interesting and important points are disclosed—among them, that arrangements were making to purchase the prize steamers R. E. Lee and Margaret and Jessie, with the intention of again employing them in running the blockade; that the Wilmington blockade is disastrous to rebel hopes. A letter from W. P. CAMPBELL, of Bermuda, under date of Dec. 2, asserting that "the only boats that came in from Wilmington this moon were the Flora and Gibraltar." J. N. MAFFIT, also, formerly of the United States Navy, in a letter of the 19th of October, says: "The news from the blockade-runners is decidedly bad. Six of the best boats have recently been caught—among them the Advance and Eugenie. Nothing has entered Wilmington for one month." There are also several letters, asserting that the French Emperor consents to and patronizes the Matamoras blockade-running. Further disclosures are made, which are said to implicate certain parties in this City, in the business of furnishing aid and comfort to traitors in arms.

From the Army of the Potomac we have an old song, "All quiet at the front." The number of veterans who have reenlisted for the war in that army exceeds ten thousand. The whole of KILPATRICK'S cavalry division and the famous Excelsior brigade have accepted the terms of reenlistment. Paymasters have gone to the army to pay the veteran bounties.

At Chattanooga everything is quiet. Supplies arriving by river freely. The Post-office has been reestablished. The citizens and camp-followers are being enrolled for a draft.

A dispatch from Boston announces that letters received in that city state that Gen. ULLMANN and part of his colored brigade have been captured near Port Port Hudson, La., and are now in Richmond as prisoners. This is hardly creditable. Gen. ULLMANN was certainly at Port Hudson on the 8th inst., and news of such an event should have reached us via New-Orleans before this.

The bark Sazon, a prize to the Federal cruiser Vanderbilt, arrived at this port last evening from the West Coast of Africa. She has a cargo of wool which was a portion of the freight of the bark Conrad, which fell a prize, six months since, to the pirate Alabama, near the Cape of Good Hope, and was captured at Angra Pequina. The Vanderbilt had confiscated 200 tons of coal at Penguin Island, which was a depot of the pirates.

Assertions having been made that Gen. HOOKER needlessly sacrificed a thousand men in the fight at Ringgold, Ga., it may be well to state that in the late campaign Gen. HOOKER'S command fought four battles, beside several skirmishes, captured over two-thirds of all the prisoners, arms and camp equipage taken, and seven pieces of the artillery, with a total loss not exceeding one thousand men.

A dispatch from Halifax announces that the authorities have made no arrests of those who rescued the pirates of the Chesapeake from the officers. Of course not. Nobody expected they would.

GENERAL NEWS.

In the Board of Aldermen, yesterday, the resolution to purchase MILLS' duplicate equestrian bronze statue of Gen. JACKSON, came up and was lost for want of a three-fourths vote, and afterward it was laid over. The resolution from the Council Board to appoint a Joint Committee to erect a monument over the graves of the Catholic soldiers who have fallen during the war, and are buried in the soldiers' plot in Calvary Cemetery, at a cost not to exceed $12,000, was laid over under the rule. A resolution to increase the salaries of the Health Wardens and Deputies, and the Street Inspectors to $1,500 a year, was introduced and laid over. The Comptroller reported the receipts into the City Treasury for the week ending on last Saturday to have been $912,269 67; the expenditures during the same time, $1,812,323 69; and the cash balance on hand on that day, $3,076,456. The Board adjourned to 2 o'clock P. M., on Thursday.

At the meeting of the Board of Supervisors yesterday, an unusually large number of spectators, mostly interested in the appointment of District Court Clerks, were kept waiting outside the doors for half an hour, while the Board held a caucus on the subject, but they could not agree upon it. It is therefore probable that the appointments will go over till next year and the next Board. The expectants, however, not aware of this result, crowded the lobby as soon as the doors were opened. A report was received from Dr. J. FRANKEL, accompanied with $20 in gold, which some inmates of the County Jail had given him in gratitude for his attentions to them during sickness. The Doctor was appointed to attend to the health of the inmates of that institution at a compensation of $400 per annum, he to pay for the requisite medicines, and to report quarterly the numbers and condition of the inmates. His report is for the quarter ending with this month. Since October the jail has been filled principally with blockade runners. A list of their names and particulars concerning them the Jail Clerk refused to give. He reports 25 sick and 58 visits to them, and the sick paid part of the cost of the necessary medicines. At one time 81 of the 85 cells were occupied. Cleanliness and ventilation of the jail are good; also the meals and attendance. At present there are only a few blockade runners and county prisoners confined there. The money was ordered to be returned to the doctor, and the keeper of the jail was directed to give him free access to his records. A resolution to increase the salaries of the Surrogate and City Judge from $5,000 to $4,000 per annum was lost. The Board adjourned to 2 o'clock P. M. on Saturday.

Workmen have been engaged for some time past, under the direction of Col. MCCALLUM, Superintendent of Military Railroads, in collecting all the old iron scattered along the Orange and Alexandria Railroad, from Alexandria to the Rappahannock River. The lot comprises remnants from the wrecks of locomotives, railroad cars, bent and twisted rails, and iron from the bridges destroyed and track torn up in the various rebel raids which have taken place on the line of this road within the past two years. These fragments, of all sorts, sizes and descriptions, spread along the road for miles, are being gathered up and taken to Alexandria, where they will be sold during the coming month. The lot will amount to upward of two thousand tons, and comprises some nine or ten damaged locomotives.

Gold was steady yesterday, at 152¼@½. Money in good request, at 7 ⅌ cent. Government Popular Loan in demand; subscriptions, $1,691,000. The Railway speculation improved in the afternoon; Erie, 107¼@½.

Shipping brands of Flour were in good demand yesterday, partly on speculation, at an advance of 5c.@10c. ⅌ bbl. Wheat and Corn were less sought after, and were heavy. Provisions were brisk and buoyant. Groceries, Tallow, Hops, Hay and Whisky were in moderate request. Cotton was quiet and declining. Chemicals were salable, at rising prices. Other branches of trade exhibited no remarkable alteration.

The Live Stock markets are supplied with 5,910 cattle, 8,792 sheep and 37,744 hogs this week. The near approach of Christmas causes an improved demand for fat stock of all kinds, and we have seldom seen so wide a range of prices as are reported this week, the good animals bringing high figures and the poor stock going very low. Beef cattle, particularly, exhibited a wide range of quality, and prices varied correspondingly, while some mean little "hoppers" or "snow-flies" of 4 cwt., brought less than 6c. ⅌ lb., for the meat. Medium steers commanded 8½c.@9½c. Good cattle, 10c.@11c., and some prime Christmas bullocks, fat as porpoises, brought 12c.@12½c. ⅌ lb. The market closed bad for poor cattle....Sheep and lambs have brought more than at any former time. Good fat sheep of 100 lbs., live weight, are worth 8c. ⅌ lb., while some extra stock was sold for $25 each, or 9c. ⅌ lb.... Live hogs are in good demand for packing, if prime and fat, at 6½c.@6¾c. Common stock makes up the bulk of the receipts, and is in moderate request.

The South and the War.

A letter has lately been published, written by Hon. T. BUTLER KING in June last, in refutation of the rumor that he was in favor of reconstruction. Mr. KING, in this letter, "defines his position." He claims to have always maintained the right of a State to secede from the Union, and to have urged Georgia to exercise that right upon the election of Mr. LINCOLN. He says he regretted the necessity for such an act, and even hoped, after the ordinance of secession had been adopted, that the Federal Government would adopt such measures as would permit their return. The war, however, put an end to these expectations, and he has sustained it to the utmost of his ability—having given every male member of his family to the field, and two, who were most dear to him, to a soldier's grave. Mr. KING then proceeds:

"But war must end in peace; and sooner or later both parties must agree to terms upon which they will lay aside their arms. The events of the past two years should be sufficient to convince every reasonable man, both North and South, that it is impossible for the Federal Government to subjugate our people; and statesmen of the South cannot fail to perceive that the Federal Government cannot abandon the war, except on a restoration of the Union, without danger of the further dismemberment of the nation.

Then, unless both parties can be influenced by the spirit of concession and compromise, 'when,' in the language of one of our distinguished Senators, 'is this struggle to end?' No man can answer as to the years; but he may safely answer, 'not until both parties are exhausted and ruined—not until the North is reduced to a condition worse than it would have been if she had quietly acquiesced in our separation, and not until the South is worse off than she would have been by remaining in the Union under an Abolition Administration of the Government.

These considerations would lead me to favor any terms of peace that the South could, with a proper regard for her interest and honor, accept.

* * * If the people of the North would now concede our rights, and the Federal Government secure them to us, the danger with which we were threatened by remaining in the Union, and the objection we had to it, would be removed, and we might with honor and advantage return to it.

The Federal Government has proceeded so far with the war that these are the only terms of peace to which we could reasonably expect it to agree; and I regret to say that I have no expectation that such terms will be proposed, or would be accepted by that Government while the Presidential chair is occupied by the present Abolition incumbent. But if, fortunately, during his administration, or within a reasonable time afterward, such terms should be offered, I am free to say that I should prefer their acceptance by our people to the continuance of the war, which must result in the desolation of our country, and the ruin of both North and South. A peace on such terms would be eminently honorable to both parties—neither could claim the victory—while the strength and valor each has exhibited would command the respect and admiration of the other.

To this extent I am a 'reconstructionist.' But it must not be understood that I would prefer reconstruction and peace on the terms indicated, to a speedy peace recognizing our independence—if that were possible; nor must it be understood that I doubt our ability to achieve our independence if the conflict is continued. But I believe it would be better for ourselves, for our posterity, and for mankind, that we should accept peace with our rights secured within the Union, than to continue the war many years, giving oceans of blood, millions of treasure, and ruining our country, for independence.

And yet the North has manifested no inclination to make peace on any reasonable terms; and until she evinces a pacific disposition, and hostilities are suspended for negotiation, nothing remains for us but to devote all our energies, skill and resources to the conflict."

This is the first intimation we have seen from any influential quarter in the South of a desire for peace on any terms short of the concession of Southern independence. Mr. KING does not hesitate to say that he would prefer peace within the Union to a continuance of the war, if the rights of the Southern States could be secured. What those rights are, and how they are to be secured, would probably be points of difference so great and so vital as to defeat every attempt at reconstruction on that basis. We insist that the rights of the South were never invaded by the National Government. We have the evidence of the rebel Vice-President STEPHENS that the South never suffered any wrong from the Government of the United States. Even Mr. KING does not assert that it had; his advocacy of secession began when Mr. LINCOLN was elected, and long before he had assumed the Presidential chair. Yet no man ever went into that high office more distinctly or more solemnly pledged, by his words, his acts, his opinions and his whole political life, to respect every constitutional right of every Southern State than he.

Mr. KING sees and concedes that the Federal Government cannot make peace on any other terms than submission on the part of the South to the Constitution and laws of the United States. He knows that it can never concede independence to the Southern Confederacy, and that the utmost it can agree to is the concession of Southern rights. It has always been ready to do that. It has never for a moment dreamed of invading or withholding them. The leading conspirators at the South knew very well that they had no real ground of complaint on this score. They scouted every proffer made in Congress or elsewhere to give them whatever they could reasonably ask in the way of security. The most solemn assurances—the offer to amend the Constitution so as to forbid any interference with Slavery in the States, the proposed passage of the CRITTENDEN bill, all were rejected with contempt. They declared that they wanted no terms, and that if they were offered a guarantee in blank and asked to fill it out, they would not do it. They were for independence—that and nothing else.

They began the war in order to gain it. Whenever they choose to retrace their steps and act on the sentiments uttered by Mr. KING, they can easily do so, otherwise the war will go on until one side or the other is too far exhausted to continue it. Which will reach that point first, the South will soon perceive.

The Discord of the Minority in Congress.

There is a general exclamation of disappointment and disgust among the Opposition journals over the fact that the Opposition Congressmen can concentrate upon nothing. It was bad enough, they protest, that no rally could be made upon one common candidate for Speaker; but this persistent refusal to combine more than sixty or seventy votes upon any Opposition measure or policy is really quite insufferable. What is opposition good for if it can only make such a shabby show as that?

The Democratic organ of Ohio in the State Capital gives it up, and without mincing the matter, says flatly:

"On the organization of the House, the unpleasant fact was developed that those elected as opponents of this reckless and tyrannical Administration had neither confidence in one another nor any common purpose in view, except the pitiful ambition of a distribution of the offices, and on that they could not agree; it was natural that they should not while no higher motive governed them."

Our neighbor, the would-be Democratic organ of this State, naturally don't take to heart the want of "higher motive," but goes straight in for "the pitiful ambition" the other organ sneers at. It begs the Peace Democrats to throw their principles behind them, and turn in for the spoils. "We would ask them," it says, "what, even in their own view, they can expect to gain by their present attitude? They must know that the Democratic party cannot elect a President on their platform." It is unfortunate for those who make such an appeal that the men addressed have the advantage not only in brains but in backbone. They are the very men best qualified for the leadership of the party, and if any leadership be possible, are bound to have it. The vote which they obtained on the peace resolutions of last week shows that they can compel the open following of three-fourths of the party. It looks like the height of impudence for the other squad, on the heels of that vote, to demand that the peace men shall face about, and come down to their ground for the sake of harmony.

But these prints may as well spare their fretting. Spoils or no spoils, there will be no combination of the Opposition elements in this Congress. The thing is naturally impossible. A portion of that Opposition were elected as outspoken, thoroughpaced Peace men. They distinctly proclaimed before the people that they believed in stopping this war, and trying negotiation. Another portion of that Opposition were the most vehement of all candidates in their protestations of undying hostility to the rebellion. The only fault they found with the war was that it was not prosecuted vigorously enough; and they gained their seats solely by making the people agree to this; and then widening the distance between them and the Administration candidates on other and minor issues.

The professed war men cannot go over to the peace men without political ruin, for their constituents trusted their original war professions, and in the late elections have shown themselves more than ever opposed to a peace policy. On the other hand, the avowed peace men perfectly well understand that, if there is to be any vitality at all in an opposition to the Administration, it must be in their principle that the true policy is not war but negotiation. They know that, in such an emergency as this, the people will never abandon the Government, or the Administration by which alone the Government can for the time be conducted, except on some issue striking to the bottom; that an organized opposition to this Administration is perfectly hopeless on any of the minor issues touching the policy of the war, and can keep its feet only on the cardinal issue of opposition to the war itself. To oppose systematically any Administration while at war, is to weaken its power of maintaining the war, and no true friend of the war can do it. The Opposition party at the period of the last war with England, opposed not simply Mr. MADISON'S management of the war, but the war itself. The Opposition party, at the time of the Mexican war, did the same thing. Those Opposition parties voted supplies, as the peace men of the present day doubtless will; but their distinctive policy, as the party of the Opposition, was an anti-war policy. Their opposition, to be a living, consistent opposition, at all, involved this logical necessity. It will be found precisely so at the present epoch. So far as there is to be any solid substance to the opposition to the Administration it must rest on the broad issue of peace against war. All attempts to shift it to other grounds will be futile.

Emigrants from Europe.

The recommendation of the President in regard to encouraging immigration, has not received as yet the public attention which it deserves. He states, what all see to be true, that the nation is in a transitional and peculiar condition, when measures may be advisable, which would not be so in ordinary times. He calls attention to the great dearth of labor in agriculture and the mines, seeing clearly that the especial loss in this war is not so much the destruction and wear of property, as the loss of labor. And yet, he informs us, "tens of thousands of people throng our foreign Consulates," desiring cheap assistance for immigration, and he accordingly asks that Congress would take into consideration the propriety of furthering this immigration by some pecuniary aid.

It has always been understood by those guiding public affairs in this country that our richest mine of wealth lay in the constant influx of foreign labor. We all know that it is not so much the inexhaustible alluvial plains of the West, or the gold veins of the Rocky Mountains, which have made us wealthy, as these united with our free supply of labor. In view of this, during a time of war, and with an immense debt heaping up, Congress has given almost the first instance in history of a National Legislature offering the land of the country without price to the settler. This liberal measure has made a profound impression in Europe. The instinct for owning land is one of the most profound instincts in the human breast. For the hard-pressed laborer, the cottier, the small tenant, the mechanic and farmer in Europe, an El Dorado seems presented when they hear that a landed estate is offered them for nothing in the rich and free Western World. No wonder that, though war is desolating so many of our provinces, they throng in "ten thousands" our Consulates for help in reaching this continent. So great is the inducement offered by this Homestead Law and our high wages, that immigration will have probably doubled this year, and already nearly a million and a half of acres have been taken up of the public lands. But the question which the President lays before Congress is, whether this source of wealth cannot be increased at the present time. Or, in other words, can the nation afford to pay something toward the transport to America of every able-bodied man from Europe who desires to settle here?

We can judge something of the value of each man now in this country, from the money paid for a recruit. We know that the least pecuniary estimate is $300, and that vast numbers receive nearly $700. The Government must have men, and, if the war should be protracted, the public will pay $1,000 for a private soldier if it becomes necessary. Now for every new laborer introduced there is the place filled of an enlisted soldier, and the loss to the community somewhat compensated. There are few immigrants now whose unskilled labor is not worth $250 per annum over and above the food which they earn and consume.

It may be safely assumed that each immigrant is worth $200 to the country; and yet probably $20 per head would be enough assistance to turn a great pile of immigrants to our coasts. If judiciously managed, there could not be a more profitable appropriation. What the nation most needs now is men. A great deal of careful organization would be necessary, so that the Government should not be putting into a few hands a gigantic "job;" but skillfully arranged between the Consuls, the ship-owners, and the Government, we could land hundreds of thousands of German and Irish laborers within a short time, to be distributed over the whole country. We earnestly invoke the attention of our legislators to this important subject.

Republicans and Catholics—Note from Dr. Brownson.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

With regard to the charge, repeated in the October number of my Review, that the TIMES had said that, when the Republicans "had put down the rebellion, they must turn round and put down the Catholics," I have, since you denied the charge, had an examination made of your files, by a gentleman who was sure that you had said it, or something like it, but all he can find out of which the charge has grown, is that you once said, "Slavery, like Popery, is incompatible with the age, and must go, or words to that effect. As to the propriety of classing Slavery and the Catholic Church together, I have nothing to say; but, if I understand, it was Slavery, not that Church, you said must go, in which assertion I entirely agree with you.

A friend has taken the trouble to compare the origin in the Catholic papers against you, and the different versions of which have been given. It appears that the charge first appeared in the Boston Pilot, as an inference drawn by a correspondent from your remark, which I have quoted. Another paper took it up, and charged you with saying it, and after that it became a "fixed fact" with the Catholic community that you had said it. I write you to say that I am satisfied that nothing like it has ever appeared in your journal, and I regret that I took any notice of it, which I did only to say, supposing you had said it, it was no reason with me, a Catholic myself, for not supporting the Republican party.

I agree with you entirely in your estimate of the veracity of the so-called Catholic papers. You may believe a statement you see in one of them if you have sufficient evidence against for believing it.

Very respectfully,

O. A. BROWNSON.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Dec. 21, 1863.

We are obliged to Dr. BROWNSON for the pains he has taken to clear up a slander which he was misled into repeating. No one should know better than he the injustice of holding an editor responsible for inferences that may be drawn from every phrase which may obtain admission into his columns. We are confident that the sentence now quoted from the TIMES must have occurred in the communication of some correspondent, if it ever appeared in our columns at all. Personally and editorially we do not "class Slavery and the Catholic Church together;" and we should be very unwilling to do or say anything which should lead our readers to suppose for a moment that we do. We regard it as a duty, as it certainly is our inclination, to treat the religious and moral institutions of others with entire and sincere respect, whether they agree with our own or not, and we should be very sorry to violate that fundamental article of our faith and practice by such an exhibition of pharisaical bigotry as that ascribed to us.

FROM WASHINGTON.

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE N. Y. TIMES.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, Dec. 22.

THE HOUSE COMMITTEE OF WAYS AND MEANS.

The House Committee on Ways and Means, today, finished the Naval Appropriation Bill. Very little reduction from the estimates will be made by the Committee. The Committee took up and disposed of the Post-office Appropriation Bill. The deficiency in this branch of the service is one million. The Committee determined not to meet again until after the holidays, when they will take up the recommendations of the Secretary of the Treasury, financial and other.

THE PACIFIC RAILROAD COMMITTEE.

The Senate, to-day, made the Pacific Railroad Committee a Standing Committee of that body of nine members.

THE CASE OF SENATOR HALE.

The Senate Judiciary Committee meet to-morrow to take up the charges against Senator HALE. More than one lawyer in the Senate and House do not hesitate to say that they would rather resign their seats than surrender their professional practice in Washington.

MONEY FOR VETERAN VOLUNTEERS.

The veteran regiments in the Army of the Potomac are to receive their bounty money immediately. The first installment will amount to about $250 per man. There will leave for the army to-morrow to pay these veterans, Paymasters Oakley, Yard, Moore, Staples, Ely, Grist, Holman and McFarland. They will take about $2,000,000. The number of men from the Army of the Potomac who have reenlisted for the war is over 10,000.

THE THREE HUNDRED DOLLAR EXEMPTION CLAUSE TO BE STRICKEN OUT.

The sentiment of Senators respecting the three hundred dollar exemption has wholly changed to-day. They will strike out the exemption clause, and not insert any amount in its place. The feeling is general in the Senate that the gaps in the army must be filled up, and the war vigorously prosecuted to an end.

LIMITATION TO THE PAYMENT OF BOUNTIES.

An amendment was adopted to the Twenty Million Bounty Bill passed to-day, that after the fifth of January no bounty will be paid either to veteran or other soldiers who may reenlist.

WHOLESALE RE-ENLISTMENTS.

The Second New-York and First Michigan cavalry have reenlisted for three years. The whole of KILPATRICK'S cavalry division has gone in for the war.

The Third Excelsior regiment on Friday reenlisted in a body for the war. The whole brigade will probably reenlist.

PROJECT TO GET SOLDIERS FROM REBELDOM.

Senator WILSON will soon introduce a bill providing for the enlistment of soldiers in the rebellious States. The persons so enlisting to enter any regiment now in the field from the loyal States they may select. The desire is to get them into veteran regiments, and at the same time to enlarge the field from which the loyal States can draw troops.

MAIL IRREGULARITIES.

The constant delays in the mails between Washington and New-York, led to the introduction in the Senate to-day of a resolution requesting the Postmaster-General to communicate the reasons for these failures, and asking what legislation is necessary to prevent them, and if a new railroad to New-York is necessary to meet the wants of the postal service. The monopoly line was saved by the opposition of the Postmaster-General from the completion of a new road from Washington to Baltimore, in the first year of the war, which would have been built by the Government. The organization of a lobby against any new route to New-York has already been made.

INCREASED TAXATION IMPERATIVE.

The financial debate in the Senate to-day left behind in the minds of many of the most thoughtful and patriotic members an anxious sense of the necessity of a vast increase in our taxation, and that immediately.

ORGANIZATION OF AN AMBULANCE CORPS.

Senator WILSON will introduce, to-morrow, a bill to organize an ambulance corps, which details the old hands in the business, and saves the Treasury from the creation of a new gang of officers, and the service from inexperienced recruits.

GUERRILLAS.

Guerrillas are still sticking to us. Yesterday they made an attempt to destroy a railroad bridge between Burke's Station and Bull Run. They were driven off before they had time to do much damage.

FIVE-TWENTIES.

The amount of Five-Twenties remaining unsold is less than $50,000,000.

DISPATCHES TO THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, Dec. 22.

THE BOUNTY APPROPRIATION.

The bill which has passed both Houses of Congress to supply deficiencies, appropriates $20,000,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, for the payment of bounties and advance pay, provided that no bounties, excepting such as are not provided by law, shall be paid to any persons enlisted for the 5th of January next; that the money paid by drafted persons under the Enrollment Act shall be paid into the Treasury, and shall be drawn out on requisitions as in the case of other public moneys, and the money so paid shall be kept in the Treasury as a special deposit, applicable only to the expenses of the draft and for the procuration of substitutes, for those purposes it is hereby appropriated.

MOVEMENTS OF TREASURY OFFICERS—DANGEROUS WRECK.

The United States revenue steamer Tiger arrived at Alexandria to-day, from Fortress Monroe, having brought her Assistant Secretary of the Treasury FESS and Messrs. RISLEY and ROUSE, connected with the special service of the Treasury Department.

The steamer passed, inside Point Lookout, a large schooner, sunk in fifteen fathoms of water, with her mast-heads above water; lower sails and gaf-topsails set, apparently having been run into within a day or two, and sunk by a collision. The steamer stopped near, and saw no person upon the wreck. It lay in the mid-passage, and at night is dangerous to vessels.

CORRESPONDENCE WITH MEMBERS OF CONGRESS.

It has been erroneously stated that all letters to members of Congress must be prepaid. The transmission and receipt of mail matter by them continues as heretofore, under the franking privilege, namely, free. All correspondence, however, addressed to any Executive Department, or any officer of it, must now be prepaid, excepting official communications written by some officer of the department, or an officer under its control or responsible to it, and in such cases under the words "Official Business" on the envelope, the officer must sign his name, with his official designation.

DISTINGUISHED VISITORS AT THE CAPITAL.

Among the distinguished visitors at the Capital are the Prince D'ARENBERG, the Count DE CHAMBORD, M. BLOUET, and Capt. VIGNAUX, of the French naval service. Yesterday, accompanied by the French Minister, they dined with the Secretary of State, and to-day they proceed to visit the Army of the Potomac.

Fine Arts.

The sale of the fine collection of modern paintings, formerly in possession of J. WEARE, Esq., which commenced yesterday at the Dusseldorf Galleries, is under the direction of H. H. LANE & Co., Auctioneers, and not under that of E. SUTTERMEISTER, as was inadvertently stated yesterday. It will be continued to-day.

THE ARMY OF THE POTOMAC.

Condition of Affairs at the Front.

Improbability of Rebel Demonstrations During the Winter.

[illegible]

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, Dec. 22.

[illegible]

The insufficiency of shoes and blankets, if the statements of deserters can be relied upon, renders it equally improbable that LEE's infantry can be called from their strong position and comfortable shelters, to undertake a campaign during the rigors of Winter.

The probable number of reenlistments into the Veteran corps from the Army of the Potomac, is estimated at 10,000. The delay in indicating the precise date of the thirty days' furloughs, has caused many to reconsider their first intentions.

The desire to visit their homes during the holidays has proved more powerful than the liberal bounties offered for reenlisting.

Five and perhaps six companies of the Ninety-third New-York regiment, have reenlisted, and are expected to start home on Wednesday. This regiment has for a long time filled the responsible post of headquarters and provost-guard. During this service they have seized and turned over to the authorities at Washington over 20,000 prisoners. The regiment is temporarily commanded by Lieut.-Col. BURNS.

The Oneida cavalry, Capt. MAGY, an independent company attached to the Quartermaster's Department, are also reenlisting, and will probably be sent home to recruit.

The First Maryland cavalry, Maj. TWEEDALE, commanding, are also making rapid movements in the same direction.

The charges against Maj.-Gen. HUMPHREYS, Chief of Maj.-Gen. MEADE's Staff, caused considerable comment among his brother officers. But, so far as can be ascertained from an extensive intercourse with the army, these charges are almost unanimously denounced as merely the manifestations of a revengeful spirit, caused by a just punishment of a violation of military rules. The charges are so foreign to what is known of Gen. HUMPHREYS by his associates of many years' standing, that they are unanimous in recommending him to take no steps in regard to them. As the confirmation of Gen. HUMPHREYS' appointment, made since the charges were uttered, is now pending in the Senate, the inference generally is that they have been reproduced to obtain his rejection.

Hundreds of sutlers to-day, under the new order, have crowded the Provost-Marshal-General's office to obtain permits and transportation for the much-needed supplies. The order gives universal satisfaction.

DEATH OF GEN. CORCORAN.

He is Killed by a Fall from His Horse.

FAIRFAX COURT-HOUSE, Tuesday, Dec. 22.

To the Associated Press:

Gen. MICHAEL CORCORAN died at half-past eight this evening, from injuries received from a fall from his horse.

THOS. M. REED,

Lieut.-Col. Com'g, 69th Reg., Corcoran Irish Legion.

Brig.-Gen. CORCORAN, whose death is announced above, was born in Ireland, and was about 45 years of age. He has been a resident of this City for ten or fifteen years past, and his history, especially since the rebellion commenced, is well known to most of our readers. He was among the first to engage in the present struggle for the maintainance of the nationality of his adopted country, and went forth in response to the first call of the President as Colonel of the Sixty-ninth regiment New-York National Guard. His capture at the first battle of Bull Run, his subsequent imprisonment in rebel dungeons his heroic and patriotic conduct during that imprisonment in the face of the rebel threats to hang him in retaliation for the anticipated execution by our Government of rebel pirates; his subsequent release and magnificent reception in New-York and other cities during the Summer of '62, are all familiar to the public. In consideration of his eminent services and patriotism, he was commissioned Brigadier-General by the President while yet he remained in the hands of the enemy. On his return to New-York he raised a brigade with which he again took the field, and has since been stationed most of the time in the vicinity of Suffolk, Va. The announcement of his untimely and accidental death will fall heavily upon his numerous friends in this City, and will be felt as a serious loss by the Government, which he has served with so much zeal and fidelity.

A CANARD EXPOSED.

No Rebel Pirates in the Straits of Gibraltar.

BOSTON, Tuesday, Dec. 22.

A Gibralter letter of the 27th ult., received by a well-known mercantile house in this city, states that the supposed rebel steamer seen off the Straits of Gibraltar proves to be a French war steamer attached as a dispatch boat to the French iron-clad fleet which was cruising off Cape St. Vincent.

Funeral of Gen. Buford.

WEST POINT, Tuesday, Dec. 22.

The funeral of Maj.-Gen. JOHN BUFORD took place this afternoon. It was attended by the Superintendent and all the professors and officers, the corps of Cadets, and the detachments of cavalry and artillery. The remains were conveyed to the Cadets' Cemetery, where they were interred with distinguished honors.

Supplies for Prisoners in Richmond.

We take pleasure in publishing the following letter, written in reply to a query made by a citizen of Washington:

OFFICE OF THE COMMISSIONER OF EXCHANGE, FORTRESS MONROE, VA., Dec. 19, 1863.

SIR: In reply to your inquiry of the 17th inst., you are respectfully informed that the rebel authorities will continue to receive supplies from private sources, sale only, for our prisoners in Richmond.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

S. A. MEREDITH,

Brig.-Gen., and Commissioner of Exchange.

The Universal Clothes-Wringer is especially recommended for a HOLIDAY GIFT, being useful as well as ornamental. Gives one to your mother-in-law. It will not only save her time and strength, but will preserve her clothes. The water can be turned from LARGE and SMALL articles, making clothes perfectly free from water, and leaving them as much more thoroughly cleansed than by the ordinary, old-fashioned, BACK-BREAKING, WRIST-STRAINING, CLOTHES-DESTROYING PROCESS. Clothes can be wrung by using the Universal Clothes-Wringer. Time is Money. Clothes can be wrung in half the time, and save time. Next home free of charge. R. C. BROWNING, No. 243 Broadway, N.-Y.

Chilblained, or Black Fingers.

Chilblains on the feet called Black, are very annoying, particularly in cases of tight constriction, by the discoloration on the skin they also occasion, by causing the hosiery to cling, and anything else will remove Black Fingers without injuring the skin, leaving or color; would no doubt be considered a great achievement in medical science. Dr. B. C. FERRY, having devoted his whole time and attention to Diseases of the Skin, will guarantee to remove Moth Patches, Freckles, and other discolorations from the face, without injury to the texture or color of the skin. His success in this, as in other branches of his specialty—DISEASES OF THE SCALP and HAIR OF MAN—all warrant him in guaranteeing a CURE IN EVERY CASE. For full particulars address inclosing stamp for a circular. DR. B. C. FERRY, No. 6 Bond-st., New-York. All consultations FREE.

A SUPPOSED REBEL PLOT TO SEIZE A VESSEL.—The authorities in this city, and through them those at Washington, have been made acquainted with what is believed to be a rebel plot to seize a bark about to sail from this port. A few days since two gentlemen, on the train from New-York to Philadelphia, were conversing together in regard to the nature of the steamer Chesapeake, when they were interrupted by a female sitting near, who appeared to be asleep, and who, upon being awakened, inquired if they had been talking about the steamer Chesapeake. She informed the two gentlemen, by way of making that which they had been talking about seem as nothing in comparison with what was proposed to be done in Philadelphia, that an Englishman was there, "something more important, in fact, a vessel was about to sail loaded with Government stores, and she was to be captured. The Englishman had little more of what they at first believed to be the mere ravings of the woman, but she continued to insist in her belief, and she described the vessel. They did look for the gentleman in question, and found him in the cars, but he was not the man who had been pointed out to them in the morning, but which had been changed in order that the conspirator might be kept in ignorance of the fact that he had been betrayed. The woman described the man, and gave minute particulars of his appearance, and of the place where he was to be found. The Englishman, who was a native of Philadelphia, where the woman was to be found, was sent there by Government. On Saturday night he was in Philadelphia, and on Sunday morning he was in Wilmington, where the woman was to be found. The woman, it appears, is a native of Philadelphia, and her father, who is a prominent citizen, was sent for, and he identified the woman. The Government, through the Secretary of the Navy, has been informed of the matter, and every exertion will be made to prevent the carrying out of the conspiracy. The vessel which was to be seized is a bark of 1,000 tons, and she was to be taken to Charleston, S. C., and there delivered to the rebels. The woman, who is a native of Philadelphia, and who is a lady of good family, and moreover a Southern sympathizer, is described as being about 25 years of age, and of a very prepossessing appearance

DR. HOWARD.

A regular physician, treats all private diseases in a rational and proper manner. The wonderful cure-all, "two days time to cure syphilis," he does not promise. Instead of drying up the disease for a short time, to break out anew in a more virulent form, he goes to the cause of the trouble. In primary, secondary and tertiary syphilis, and in seminal weakness, impotency and mercurial disease, a natural and physiological cure is warranted. How can an irregular physician, who understands nothing about anatomy, know how to cure diseases of the sexual system? There are probably not three physicians in this branch of practice in the city, who can tell how many bones there are in the human skull.

ALL KINDS OF FURNITURE, LOOKING-GLASSES, MATTRESSES, BEDDING, &c., cheaper than at any other store. Warranted and delivered free. 66 G. W. SNEDEN'S, No. 203 Bowery, between Stanton and Houston sts. Furniture in cases.

THE BRILLIANT
JEWELLED SOLDIER
NATIONAL HOME ENTERPRISE,
THE MIRROR OF THE REBELLION,
DEVOTED TO RAISING FUNDS FOR A NATIONAL HOME.

GRAND TICKETS AT ONE DOLLAR EACH.

LIBERAL BOUNTY TO PURCHASERS.

JOSIAH DUNHAM, Agent for the Trustees, has the honor to announce that, for creating a fund for the foundation of a National Institution, to be a home for the valid and Disabled Soldiers.

The original number of tickets issued for this object was 100,000, one-third of which have been already disposed of in Boston, Mass., where the enterprise was first projected.

Each of the 27 tickets is good for four dimensions to the mirror.

MIRROR OF THE REBELLION,

which will be exhibited for this purpose in Clinton Hall, commencing

THIS (WEDNESDAY) EVENING, Dec. 23,

and continuing every afternoon and evening until further notice.

One half of the profits of the entire sale will be exclusively devoted and donated to the above-named patriotic object.

According to the original advertised plan, a mass meeting of the ticket-holders was held in Faneuil Hall, Boston, on Nov. 4, and an adjourned meeting, at the same place, on Dec. 16. The following-named gentlemen were elected as a Board of Trustees to receive the fund which may accrue from the novel enterprise, and to appropriate the same to this object, in accordance with the plans of the originator: Gen. John S. Tyler, chairman; His Excellency Gov. James Y. Smith, of Rhode Island; Hon. George Briggs, of New-York; His Excellency Gov. A. G. Curtin, of Pennsylvania; Major-Gen. N. P. Banks, of Massachusetts; Major-Gen. O. O. Howard, of Maine; His Excellency Gov. Richard Yates, of Illinois.

To speedily accomplish this great purpose every wise means will be used by the projector to effect the immediate sale of the tickets, and he calls upon the loyal and humane to assist earnestly in carrying this noble undertaking forward to a triumphant success.

Neither its importance nor its feasibility can be called in question. Let the people but respond in a spirit worthy of the project, and no obstacles shall delay its consummation.

Making the proposition in good faith, and ready to devote his whole energies to the great work, the projector firmly believes the tide of popular favor will flow in the desired direction, and accomplish the founding and improving of a home for the veteran National Institution, which shall be an asylum for the retired soldier, whose lost of health or limb is his diploma for heroic services performed in his country's cause, and which shall go down to future generations a blessing to mankind, and an enduring monument to the liberality of the loyal people.

By combining this enterprise with a public place of amusement of such well-established high character and merit, the subscriber to the fund, while giving his money for the promotion of a great charitable design, may receive a full equivalent for the outlay in witnessing this splendid series of Paintings.

To effect the speediest possible sale of the tickets, so that unnecessary expense may be saved, and the National Home Fund proportionably increased, a further inducement is offered as a bounty to purchasers. As soon as the tickets shall have been sold, the following described property will be donated to the ticket-holders, and placed in the hands of their Trustees, a distinct Board having been chosen for that purpose at the mass meetings held as above stated. The donation will be distributed gentlemen, who, on receipt of the property, will dispose of the same as ticket-holders in mass meeting may direct—there to be no violation of law in such disposal: Hon. Charles O. Rogers, Hon. Charles W. Slack, Gen. Robert Cowdin, Col. Albert J. Wright, John O. Haynes, Esq., of Boston; Joshua Webster, Esq., of Mapleville, Mass.; lessee of Music Hall, Boston, Mass.

AN ELABORATELY-CARVED 7-O

WENDELL PHILLIPS AT COOPER INSTITUTE.

Review of the President's Proclamation

Mr. Lincoln Considered No Leader,

MR. CHASE NOT THE MAN FOR PRESIDENT.

DENUNCIATION OF SECRETARY SEWARD.

A very large audience assembled at Cooper Institute, last evening, to hear WENDELL PHILLIPS. Jos. H. WILLIAMS, Esq., presided, and introduced the speaker, who spoke substantially as follows:

Four years ago this month he had the honor to assist in giving the body of JOHN BROWN to the keeping of the hills he loved. Selfishness, which calls itself conservatism, sneered at his life as a ridiculous failure; and some men, who had called themselves his friends, excused his attempt on the ground that he was a lunatic. We know better now. The rebellion had broken into the cabinets of the conspirators, and we know of a surety now that the echoes of his rifles had hardly died away on the banks of the Shenandoah before South-Carolina prepared for war in defence of her system. Four years rolled away, and on the exact fourth anniversary of the day of his burial, the victorious President offered eleven rebellious States permission to return to the Union on conditions which JOHN BROWN would gladly have accepted after twenty years' hard fighting. Marvelous progress for four years! Still might he say, as he did to THEODORE PARKER, "I may fail; I may expiate my rashness on the gibbet; but I shall open a terrible fire." But that terrible fire which would have been gladly accepted in 1859—naked and bald technical liberty for the negro—were not to be thought of a moment in 1863. [Applause.] After the gun at Sumter, followed by three years of bloody and costly war, there was no safe and admissible condition of peace, but the substantial, practical protection of the freedom of the negro, and the elements of national life so arranged as to guarantee peace and democracy within the borders of the nation. [Great applause.] It was in the light of this reminiscence that he was going to criticise the Message and Proclamation of the President on the 8th day of the present month. Some men say, why make any serious criticism of the Proclamation of the President?—we know very well that Mr. LINCOLN did not expect it would be accepted. He would not insult the head of a great nation by judging the solemn act of the most momentous hour of his life to be in such mood and purpose that he was not willing to have it accepted. No man who trusts either the sincerity or the honesty of ABRAHAM LINCOLN could look upon this proclamation in any other light than as a declaration of the terms upon which the President was willing that the Union should be reconstructed. The people regarded the President as surveying the contest from a loftier outlook than was permitted to any other man, and we should do him injustice, an injustice which the masses of the people would never do him, to say that in his deliberate judgment, in the full knowledge of the facts, that proclamation did not contain probable, possible, and secure guarantees of the future peace and integrity of the Union. Others said: "Why criticise the President?—we know he is a growing man with his face Zionward." He knew it. All honor to the growing man. And why did he grow? Because they watered him. [Applause.] Why did he advance? Because the nation pushed him on. [Applause.] If Mr. LINCOLN were a leader, it would be different; he would go to him; but, with all his merits—and they were many; with all his services—and they were momentous, the President was not a leader; never professed to be a leader;—the President was the agent of public opinion, who waited to know when the people would blow his and demand of him to do. His anxiety was North, in opinion, to know how much he might trust himself to act. Chattanooga was a brave sound at the White House, and gave its tenants sound sleep; but the election of SCHUYLER COLFAX was ten times braver, and made him sleep ten times sounder, happiness; for he knew that GRANT could go to the Gulf when he chose, but he did not know whether the Northern people, culminating in the election of the Speakership, meant to say amen to the most radical dreams of the North; and when he heard of that vote in the House of Representatives, the people's attorney at the White House dared more than he had ever dared before. [Laughter.] Applause.] He knew of a surety now that the echoes of his rifles had hardly died away on the banks of the Shenandoah before South-Carolina prepared for war in defence of her system. Four years rolled away, and on the exact fourth anniversary of the day of his burial, the victorious President offered eleven rebellious States permission to return to the Union on conditions which JOHN BROWN would gladly have accepted after twenty years' hard fighting. Marvelous progress for four years! Still might he say, as he did to THEODORE PARKER, "I may fail; I may expiate my rashness on the gibbet; but I shall open a terrible fire." But that terrible fire which would have been gladly accepted in 1859—naked and bald technical liberty for the negro—were not to be thought of a moment in 1863. [Applause.] After the gun at Sumter, followed by three years of bloody and costly war, there was no safe and admissible condition of peace, but the substantial, practical protection of the freedom of the negro, and the elements of national life so arranged as to guarantee peace and democracy within the borders of the nation. The people regarded the President as surveying the contest from a loftier outlook than was permitted to any other man, and we should do him injustice, an injustice which the masses of the people would never do him, to say that in his deliberate judgment, in the full knowledge of the facts, that proclamation did not contain probable, possible, and secure guarantees of the future peace and integrity of the Union. Others said: "Why criticise the President?—we know he is a growing man with his face Zionward." He knew it. All honor to the growing man. And why did he grow? Because they watered him. [Applause.] Why did he advance? Because the nation pushed him on. [Applause.] If Mr. LINCOLN were a leader, it would be different; he would go to him; but, with all his merits—and they were many; with all his services—and they were momentous, the President was not a leader; never professed to be a leader;—the President was the agent of public opinion, who waited to know when the people would blow his and demand of him to do. His anxiety was North, in opinion, to know how much he might trust himself to act. Chattanooga was a brave sound at the White House, and gave its tenants sound sleep; but the election of SCHUYLER COLFAX was ten times braver, and made him sleep ten times sounder, happiness; for he knew that GRANT could go to the Gulf when he chose, but he did not know whether the Northern people, culminating in the election of the Speakership, meant to say amen to the most radical dreams of the North; and when he heard of that vote in the House of Representatives, the people's attorney at the White House dared more than he had ever dared before. MESSAGE FROM HIS HONOR THE MAYOR.

The following message was received from His Honor the Mayor, announcing the death of Alderman Andre Froment:

MAYOR'S OFFICE, NEW-YORK, Dec. 18, 1863.

To the Honorable the Common Council:

GENTLEMEN: It becomes my painful duty to announce to you the death of Alderman Andre Froment, which took place yesterday at his residence in East Thirty-first street.

As a representative for several years past of the Fifteenth Aldermanic District in the City Councils, his well-known integrity and fidelity to official duty, his experience in the public service and his intelligent zeal for the public interests, have made him one of the most reliable and respected of our public men.

The uniform urbanity of manner and the unfailing courtesy of language which characterized his official and personal intercourse, will not soon be forgotten by those of us who have been associated with him in public duty.

As an exemplary citizen and an honest and faithful legislator, his death must be deeply lamented by the whole community as well as by his family and large circle of friends.

I therefore recommend the adoption of appropriate resolutions of respect to the memory of the deceased, and of condolence to his family and friends, and that you will make suitable arrangements for his funeral. I would also recommend that the public offices be closed on the day of the funeral, and that the flags on the public buildings be displayed at half mast.

GEORGE OPDYKE, Mayor.

Whereupon, Alderman Ottiwell presented the following preamble and resolution, prefacing their introduction by reviewing of the life and character of the deceased.

Whereas, The sad intelligence of the death of Andre Froment, the representative in this Board of the Fifteenth Aldermanic District, Twenty-third Ward, has been communicated to this Board, he departing this life on Thursday, the seventeenth instant, at two o'clock P. M., in the forty-third year of his age, after a long and painful illness, which, with true Christian fortitude and resignation, he bore with unexampled patience and meek submission to the will of Him by whose dread decree our late associate and friend is summoned from among us; and

Whereas, It is manifestly the mournful duty of the Common Council, composed as it is exclusively of his most intimate associates and personal friends, to give expression to their profound sorrow for the irreparable loss sustained by them in being deprived of the counsel and guidance of one so eminently well qualified to act the part of counsellor and guide, to bear willing testimony to the many great, good and noble qualities possessed by our deceased friend and associate, and to place on record our appreciation of his many public and private virtues: be it therefore

Resolved, That in the decease of our friend and associate, Andre Froment, late Alderman of the Fifteenth Aldermanic District, this Common Council loses an intelligent, upright and honest member; the district which he lately represented loses a competent, energetic and influential representative; the City of New-York loses a faithful, disinterested and public-spirited citizen; while in the circle of his immediate relative friends, particularly to his bereaved family, his loss is an irreparable affliction, and we hereby tender them our heartfelt condolence, in this, their hour of tribulation.

Resolved, That this Common Council do deeply and sincerely lament and deplore the decease of our esteemed and valued associate and friend. He was possessed in an eminent degree of that quiet and gentlemanly deportment, gentle and delicate manners, amiability and kindness of disposition that endeared him to all with whom he became acquainted, while the most inflexible and determined adherence to truth and justice formed one of the most prominent characteristics of his well-balanced mind.

Resolved, That the Common Council do deeply and fervently sympathize with the afflicted family of our deceased friend in their bereavement. We ask to be permitted to share their sorrow; to assist them in bearing the heavy burden of grief experienced at his loss; to share their affliction; to condole with them in their desolation; we hope to assist in assuaging the poignancy of their regrets by reminding them that to none do the Divine promises of consolation apply with more directness and force than to those who submit, with patience and resignation to His inscrutable decrees. He has promised to be "a father to the fatherless," and "a comforter to the afflicted." His promises are ever fulfilled. It is written that "whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth." It is only for us, poor, insignificant mortals, to bow in meek submission to His will, and to acknowledge our total dependence upon Him, who, in His wisdom and mercy, "doeth all things well."

Resolved, That in consideration of our respect for the memory of our deceased associate, the members of this Common Council will attend his funeral in a body, with their staves of office draped in mourning; that they will wear the usual badge of mourning for a period of thirty days; will cause the chair formerly occupied by him in this Chamber to be shrouded in mourning; will cause the flags on the City Hall and the other public buildings in the City to be displayed at half-mast during the day of the funeral, and that a Special Committee of the members of each branch of the Common Council be appointed to make the necessary arrangements for attending the funeral and perfecting the other arrangements contemplated in the passage of these resolutions.

Resolved, That the Clerk of the Common Council cause a copy of the foregoing preamble and resolutions to be suitably engrossed and framed, duly authenticated, and transmitted to the family of the deceased; and be it further

Resolved, That, as a further mark of respect to the memory of the deceased, the Board do now adjourn.

Alderman Hardy, in seconding the preamble and resolutions, paid a growing tribute of respect to the life, character and public services of the deceased.

The Chairman pro tem then put the question on the adoption of the preamble and all but the last resolution.

Which was unanimously adopted.

Whereupon he appointed Aldermen Ottiwell, Hardy and Ryers as such Special Committee on the part of this Board.

The question was then taken on the adoption of the last of the series of resolutions.

Which was also unanimously adopted.

As the Chairman, pro tem announced that the Board stood adjourned without day.

D. T. VALENTINE, Clerk.

Veto message from His Honor the Mayor, vetoing resolution permitting John T. Mills to run street car horse cars on his line of stages.

To the Honorable the Board of Aldermen:

GENTLEMEN: I return without approval your resolution, "That for the better accommodation of the public, John T. Mills, his associates, and his and their heirs and assigns be, and they are hereby authorized, empowered and permitted to operate, and use horse cars in lieu of stages as a daily mode of conveying of persons and property through, over and upon the present existing route of the said Mills, wherever the said Mills now had the right or permission to operate, run or use such stages, with the right, power and privilege of laying down and using such switches and turnouts (in one extending five hundred feet in length) upon those streets and avenues where rail tracks are now laid down, as may be necessary and requisite for the use and operation of such cars upon the route aforesaid.

The said Mills, his associates, his and their heirs and assigns, shall, in consideration of the permission hereby given, pay to the City the same sum as a license fee upon each of the cars so to be used, run or operated upon said route as is now chargeable upon similar cars under the existing City ordinances."

My objections to this resolution are, first, that it contains no limitation of the rate of fare to be charged by the beneficiaries named in it. This restriction is proper in justice to the passengers who might use the proposed railcars, and who might not be likely to share the will of the grantees in a matter of so much importance. Again, the recent action of the municipal government and City railroads, in which we have all concurred, has been to require the payment into the City treasury of one-tenth of the gross receipts.

That condition is one which I regard as eminently proper and just to the City corporation, and the privileges which have proved to be of great value to the recipients. Objections to this resolution have been strongly urged upon me by the Third Avenue Railroad Company on various grounds; that company claiming, among other things, that they have an exclusive grant from the City for running rail cars on this route.

A careful examination of the grant by the Corporation to that company, dated January one, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-three, has satisfied me that it confers no such exclusive right as is claimed: nor do I believe that it is competent for either the City Government or the State Legislature, to confer such exclusive privilege. The land of these streets has been taken for the accommodation of the public, and it is clearly in contravention of that purpose to appropriate any portion of those streets, to the exclusive use and advantage of any individual or company.

Nor can I see the force of the other objections which were urged by that company. On the contrary, were it not for the defects already mentioned, this resolution would receive my approval.

In fact, it seems to me that, in view of the improvident legislation of both the City and the State, in granting these railroad franchises, without any adequate compensation to the City, it would be well for the Corporation to grant to any proper applicant privileges of the character embraced in your resolution, with the restrictions as to fare and the reservation of one-tenth of the gross receipts, as I have suggested. It being understood, of course, that such parties should make just compensation for the use of the rails laid down by other companies. By this means the City would hereafter secure equitable remuneration for this class of franchises, which have been found to be of great value.

GEORGE OPDYKE, Mayor.

Which was received and laid on the table, and directed to be printed at length in the minutes, and published in all the papers employed by the Corporation.

PAPERS HERETOFORE LAID OVER.

Resolutions, First, That the salaries of the officers and clerks in the Auditing Bureau of the Finance Department be increased as follows:

Auditor of Accounts to five thousand dollars per annum.

First Assistant Auditor of Accounts to three thousand five hundred dollars per annum.

Second Assistant Auditor of Accounts to two thousand five hundred dollars per annum.

First General Clerk to two thousand dollars per annum.

Second General Clerk to two thousand dollars per annum.

Third General Clerk to one thousand five hundred dollars per annum.

Second—That Article four of Chapter three, Section forty-three, be amended as follows: There shall be an additional clerk appointed, at a salary of one thousand five hundred dollars per annum, and a messenger at a salary of eight hundred dollars, and that such increase of salaries and the appointment of such additional clerk and messenger to date from January one, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-four, and the amount of such increase to be taken from the appropriation for City Contingencies.

MESSAGE FROM HIS HONOR THE MAYOR.

A message was received from His Honor the Mayor, returning unapproved preamble and resolution relative to the contract for removing night soil from the City, as follows:

MAYOR'S OFFICE, NEW-YORK, Dec. 18, 1863.

The Honorable the Board of Councilmen:

GENTLEMEN: I return without approval the preamble and resolutions authorizing directions of Section Three of Chapter Thirty of the Revised Ordinances of one thousand eight hundred and fifty-nine. In the preamble it is recited that "in response to an advertisement for proposals for removing the night soil of the City, beyond the Harbor for the next ten years, Middleton Bell, the successful bidder, has proceeded to remove the night soil without nuisance and without compensation from the City Treasury, after the expiration of the present contract, conditioned upon the passage of an ordinance giving him the exclusive right of such removal for the term of ten years, and the power to collect compensation from the owner or owners of the privies, or from the persons or persons emptying the same." Whereby, it is stated "the City will be relieved from all expense of such removal, which now amounts to fifteen thousand six hundred dollars per annum." The proposed amendments to the ordinance provide, in substance, that berths at certain piers shall be provided for the boats of the contractor for removing night soil, in which exclusively the night scavengers shall deposit the material gathered by them; that one dollar per load may be demanded and received by the contractor for each load of material so dumped into his boats, and that the said scavengers may demand and receive from the owners of privies emptied by them, such sum of one dollar per load, as a special charge for removing the material from the Hulks in the Harbor, in addition to the regular charge for emptying the privies.

Other incidental provisions are contained in the amendments, but I need not specify them, as they are not material to which I assent. The proposed amendments of the said Revised Ordinance, and the said preamble and resolutions of the City Council, passed on the twenty-third day of December, instant, is hereby approved, and the same confirmed, and said City Inspector is authorized and directed to enter into any contract or agreement in accordance with the last mentioned resolution, and this ordinance, provided that it involves no expenditure of moneys from the City Treasury.

My objections to the action above set forth are as follows: First—I understand that none of the bids on the occasion above referred to were deemed to be conformable to law, and consequently it is not strictly correct to term or to treat Mr. Bell as "the successful bidder." Second—The present cost of removing the night soil is stated to be fifteen thousand six hundred dollars. The proposed cost is one dollar per load. The number of loads removed is one thousand eight hundred and sixty was forty-eight thousand two hundred and forty-four; in one thousand eight hundred and sixty-one, forty-five thousand one hundred and sixty-six; in one thousand eight hundred and sixty-two, thirty-seven thousand two hundred and seventy-seven; in one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three, [illegible] thousand six hundred and sixty-seven, and by estimate, including December, sixty-three thousand and sixty-six, each thousand of which, however, it is stated, were owing to the occupancy of the parks, &c., by the soldiers last Summer. With this allowance, it is true that these figures show a regular decrease, but nevertheless the quantity remains so large that the proposed rate per load, would much more than double the present cost of removal. Although, by the proposed arrangement, the City would be entirely relieved from expense in the matter, I cannot consider it just, because the expense is to be thrown on the privy owners, that the cost of the work should be more than doubled, apparently for the advantage of the contractor only.

Again, I understand that one of the bidders on the occasion above referred to offered to contract with ten thousand dollars security for performance, to remove the night soil without any cost whatever, either to the City or to privy owners, and to give to the City one thousand dollars per annum for the privilege. Also,

I believe that this offer was made in good faith; that it ought to be accepted, and that its practical working would perhaps lead to a still larger saving, by bringing about some similar arrangement through which the garbage and sweepings of our City might be removed, and our streets kept clean, with very little, if any, cost to the City Treasury.

GEORGE OPDYKE, Mayor.

Which was received, laid on the table for ten days, directed to be entered at length in the minutes, and published in two or more papers employed by the Corporation, under the direction of the Clerk.

A message was received from His Honor the Mayor, returning unapproved resolution directing the Street Commissioner to advertise for proposals for building a new hose carriage for the use of Hose Company number Forty-seven, as follows:

MAYOR'S OFFICE, NEW-YORK, Dec. 18, 1863.

To the Honorable the Board of Councilmen:

GENTLEMEN: I return unapproved the resolution authorizing and directing the Street Commissioner to advertise for proposals for building a new hose carriage for the use of Hose Company number Forty-seven. This is objected to by persons living in the neighborhood, who represent that it would be injudicious to grant it. Having been unable to obtain a conference with the Chief Engineer of the Fire Department, to enable me to determine whether the objections from the neighbors were well-founded or not, I have concluded to return the resolution, in order that the parties objecting may have an opportunity of presenting their objections to your Honorable Body.

GEORGE OPDYKE, Mayor.

Which was received, laid on the table for ten days, directed to be entered at length in the minutes, and published in two or more papers employed by the Corporation, under the direction of the Clerk.

PAPERS FROM BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

Resolution that the Comptroller be directed to pay to the widow of the late Alder with resolution that the Comptroller be directed to draw his warrant in favor of Robert Macklin, for the sum of three hundred and thirty-three dollars and thirty cents, in payment for services rendered on attendance at the Sixth District Court, from January first to June first, and charge the same to the appropriate account, or any appropriation having an unexpended balance sufficient to pay the same.

Councilman Houghtaling called up General Order number eight hundred and seventy-eight, being a resolution that the Counsel to the Corporation be directed immediately to discontinue all legal proceedings in the case of Oliver Green against the Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of the City of New-York, and the Comptroller be directed to draw his warrant in favor of the attorney of said Green, for the sum of six hundred and forty-eight dollars and eighty-four cents, in full settlement of said action and claim for balance of salary due and unpaid, for services rendered as Complaint and Pay-roll Clerk to the Superintendent of Sanitary Inspection in the City Inspector's Department, in accordance with a resolution adopted by the Common Council, and approved by the Mayor December thirty, one thousand eight hundred and sixty, and that the said amount be charged to the appropriation for "City Contingencies."

Which was lost for want of a sufficient number of votes, as follows:

Affirmative—Councilmen Healy, Keenan, Webster, Gross, Brady, McConnell, Repper, Houghtaling, Haviland, Gaw, McGrath, Murray, O'Brien, Cook, Brice, Russell, Fitzgerald, Joyce—17.

Negative—Councilmen Hayes, McVay, Brandon, Russell—4.

Subsequently reconsidered and laid over.

Councilman Brady called up General Order number nine hundred and forty-five, being a report of Committee on Fire Department, in favor of concurring with Board of Aldermen in adopting resolution that the Comptroller be directed to advertise for a lot of ground, to be within the following boundaries, viz.: north side of Forty-third-street and south side of Forty-fourth-street, between Seventh and Ninth avenues, for Hose Company number Thirty-four.

Which was adopted by the following vote:

Affirmative—Councilmen Hayes, Healy, Keenan, Webster, McVay, Gross, Brady, McConnell, Repper, Houghtaling, Haviland, Gaw, McGrath, Murray, O'Brien, Cook, Brandon, Brice, Russell, Fitzgerald, Joyce—21.

Councilman Keenan called up General Order number eight hundred and eighty-eight, being a resolution that the salary of the Messengers of the Board of Fire Commissioners be increased to the sum of one thousand dollars per annum from the first day of July, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three, the same to be taken from the appropriation for City Contingencies.

Which was adopted by the following vote:

Affirmative—Councilmen Hayes, Healy, Keenan, Webster, McVay, Gross, Brady, McConnell, Repper, Houghtaling, Haviland, Gaw, McGrath, Murray, O'Brien, Cook, Brandon, Brice, Russell, Fitzgerald, Joyce—21.

Councilman Brandon called up General Order nine hundred and twenty-seven, being a resolution, that the salary of the Map Clerk in the Street Department be increased to the sum of fifteen hundred dollars per annum, to take effect from the first day of October, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three, to be taken from account of "City Contingencies," or any other appropriation having an unexpended

Which was adopted by the following vote:

Affirmative—Councilmen Hayes, Healy, Keenan, Webster, McVay, Gross, Brady, McConnell, Repper, Houghtaling, Haviland, Gaw, McGrath, Murray, O'Brien, Cook, Brandon, Brice, Russell, Fitzgerald, Joyce—21.

Councilman Haviland called up General Order eight hundred and eighty-four, being a resolution, that the Comptroller be directed to draw a warrant in favor of John H. McCabe, Contractor, for sewer in Eighty-fourth-street, between Third and Fourth avenues, for the sum of one hundred and twenty-five dollars, the same to be paid to said McCabe, as a remission of the penalty against him for overtime on said contract, out of the appropriation for "Donations," or out of any other unexpended appropriation.

Which was adopted by the following vote:

Affirmative—Councilmen Hayes, Healy, Keenan, Webster, McVay, Gross, Brady, McConnell, Repper, Houghtaling, Haviland, Gaw, McGrath, Murray, O'Brien, Cook, Brandon, Brice, Russell, Fitzgerald, Joyce—21.

Councilman Brice called up General Order number eight hundred and thirty-seven, being a bill of Rubel's Band, amounting to one hundred and fifty dollars, for music furnished twenty-third February, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three, for the Eleventh regiment, New-York State National Guard.

Which was ordered to be paid by the following vote:

Affirmative—Councilmen Hayes, Healy, Keenan, Webster, McVay, Gross, Brady, McConnell, Repper, Houghtaling, Haviland, Gaw, McGrath, Murray, O'Brien, Cook, Brandon, Brice, Russell, Fitzgerald, Joyce—21.

Councilman McVay, Brady—2.

Councilman Russell called up General Order number nine hundred and fifty-three, being a preamble of Board of Aldermen reciting that a resolution was duly passed by the Common Council, and approved by the Mayor November eighteen, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three, directing the Comptroller to pay Hugh Hunter the sum of three hundred and sixty-six dollars, as a remission of penalty for overtime for work of regulating and grading Seventy-eighth Street, from Third-avenue to the East River, without designating what appropriation the said amount should be paid from, with resolution that the above amount be ordered to be paid the said Hugh Hunter for the purposes indicated in the said resolution, to be charged by the Comptroller to the account of "Donations," and the Comptroller is directed to pay the same from appropriation for "Donations."

Which was concurred in by the following vote:

Affirmative—Councilmen Hayes, Healy, McVay, Gross, Brady, McConnell, Repper, Houghtaling, Haviland, Gaw, McGrath, Murray, O'Brien, Cook, Brandon, Brice, Russell, Fitzgerald, Joyce—21.

Negative—Councilman Keenan, Webster—2.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The following was received, viz.:

MAYOR'S OFFICE, NEW-YORK, Dec. 18, 1863.

To the Honorable the Board of Supervisors:

GENTLEMEN: I return, without approval, your resolution fixing the salaries of certain Clerks in the Supreme Court at one thousand five hundred dollars each per annum, to take effect from January one, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three, and naming among them "R. E. Ritter, Clerk at Part one and two," without mentioning the Court intended, and "Clement Vendick, Record Clerk, County Clerk's Office."

I understand that no such offices exist as are here mentioned as being filled by these gentlemen. Consequently your action fixing salaries for them, as holding such offices, is contrary to what I understand to be the law and practice in such matters; and it is especially wrong if the salaries are to be fixed to run from January one, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three, which, I am informed, was not intended, although the resolution expressly so provides. The offices if necessary, should have been, I respectfully submit, expressly created by resolution of your Board, to be filled afterwards by the County Clerk, who is the appointing officer, and the provision as to their salary should have been prospective from the time of their actual appointment.

GEORGE OPDYKE, Mayor.

Which was ordered to be printed and laid on the table for ten days.

Supervisor Purdy moved that when the Board adjourns, it do so to meet on Tuesday next, the twenty-second inst., at three o'clock P. M.

Which was carried.

Supervisor Tweed moved that the Board do now adjourn.

Which was carried.

And the President declared the Board adjourned to Tuesday next, the twenty-second instant, at three o'clock P. M.

JOS. B. YOUNG, Clerk.

In the Circuit Court of the United States, District of Indiana.

Robert L. Cutting vs. the President and Directors of the Peru and Indianapolis Railroad Company, et al.

NOTICE is hereby given, that on the 16th day January, A. D. 1864, between the hours of ten o'clock in the forenoon and four o'clock in the afternoon of said day, at Court-house, in the city of Indianapolis, County of Marion, and State of Indiana, the undersigned, the Marshal of the United States of the District aforesaid, by virtue of a certified copy of the decree rendered and made by the Court in the above entitled cause, issued by the Clerk of said Court, will sell at auction and public outcry, the following described property and rights of said Peru and Indianapolis Railroad Company, to wit:

The Peru and Indianapolis Railroad, running and extending from Peru, in the County of Miami, and State of Indiana, through the Counties of Miami, Cass, Howard, Tipton, Hamilton and Marion, to the City of Indianapolis, in said County of Marion; and all and singular the land and real estate of which the said Railroad Company was, on the 6th day of March, 1860, or now is seized or possessed, together with the rail, iron and on each side of the track, to the whole width and extent that the said Company was or is seized or possessed of the same, together with the superstructure, tracks and rails thereon and the bridges, viaducts, fences, depot grounds, and buildings thereon, engines, cars, tools, materials, machinery, and the property, rights, franchises, and effects of the said Company, in the said State of Indiana, and also all that certain piece of land extending from the termination of the said Railroad at Peru to the Lake Erie, Wabash and St. Louis Railroad, acquired or to be acquired by said Company, and the road built or to be built thereon, with the superstructure and rails thereon, or to be placed thereon, and all the depots grounds acquired or to be acquired, and all other property, real or personal, acquired or to be acquired by said Company; and also all the tolls, rents and income to be had or levied from the said Railroad extending from Peru to Indianapolis and the extension thereof to the Lake Erie, Wabash and St. Louis Railroad, in said State of Indiana; and the Peru Railroad Company and all franchises, rights, and privileges of the said Peru and Indianapolis Railroad Company of, in, to, or concerning the same and any and every part thereof.

The rents and profits of said property will first be applied for sale, and, upon failing to realize a sufficient sum to satisfy the demand, the same will be sold at the same time and place, in like manner and offer for sale the fee simple of the property, effects, rights and franchises above described, ordered to be sold as the property of the said Peru and Indianapolis Railroad Company in the above-entitled suit.

The sale will be made without relief from the valuation and appraisement laws of the State of Indiana; and said property, &c., will be sold as an entirety, and subject to the prior and paramount lien of the deed of trust or mortgage executed by said Company on the 1st day of July, 1853, to James Winslow, as Trustee, to secure the payment of the bonds of the Company, mentioned in said deed, and interest thereon, which, interest, unpaid on the 1st day of July, 1863, amounts to $62,734 17, and also subject to the rights and claims of the judgment recovered by the Madison and Indianapolis Railroad Company against said Peru and Indianapolis Railroad Company, in the Fall Term, 1860, of the Circuit Court of Marion County, Indiana, for $67,322, and which judgment has been assigned to Francis B. Cutting. The purchase money must be paid at the time the property is struck down, and upon default of payment the property will be offered and sold, the purchaser so failing to pay being responsible for any loss upon the resoffering.

SCRANTON COAL AT AUCTION.

OFFICE OF THE DELAWARE, LACKAWANNA AND WESTERN R. R. CO., NEW-YORK, Dec. 12, 1863.

This Company will hold their ELEVENTH REGULAR MONTHLY AUCTION, on WEDNESDAY, the 23d day of December, 1863, at 12 o'clock, noon, at the office of the Company, No. 26 William-st., at which time they will offer Stocon Draper, Auctioneer, embracing all the usual sizes, and deliverable at their depot, Elizabethport, N. J., during the month of January next.

TWENTY-FIVE THOUSAND TONS OF FRESH-MINED SCRANTON COAL,

The sale will be positive. Each lot put up will be sold to the highest bidder; no bids, in any form whatever, being made for account of, or on behalf of, the Company.

Fifty cents per ton, in bankable funds, to be paid at the time and place of sale, and the balance, in like funds on receiving the order for the coal, which must be called for within ten days thereafter, and the coal taken away within thirty days from the day of sale, unless navigation is obstructed. Buyers who wish, however, can have an additional thirty days for taking the delivery of their purchases, by making a further deposit of fifty cents per ton within the ten days above specified. Interest, at 7 per cent. per annum, will be such case be charged on the balance of time stipulated for payment until paid; and twenty-five cents per ton to cover the expense of stocking the coal,—both to be paid on delivery of order.

The other conditions of sale will be substantially those hitherto accepted by all purchasers, by private contract, of coal deliverable at Elizabethport, so far as applicable. The coal will be delivered direct from the cars on their arrival from the mines, when practicable—otherwise from the stock. These conditions will be modified to meet the wants of ocean steamers, whose arrival cannot be definitely fixed. JOHN BRISBIN, President.

PROPOSALS.

PROPOSALS FOR FORAGE.

CHIEF QUARTERMASTER'S OFFICE, WASHINGTON DEPOT, Dec. 5, 1863.

SEALED PROPOSALS are invited by the undersigned for supplying the United States Quartermaster's Department, at Washington, D. C., Baltimore, Md., Alexandria and Fort Monroe, Va., or either of these places, with Hay, Corn, Oats and Straw.

Bids will be received for the delivery of 5,000 bushels of corn or oats, and 50 tons of hay or straw, and upward.

Bidders must state at which of the above-named points they propose to make deliveries, and the rates at which they will make deliveries thereof, the quantity of each article proposed to be delivered, the time when said deliveries shall be commenced, and when to be completed.

The price must be written out in words on the bids.

Corn to be put up in good stout sacks, of about two bushels each. Oats in like sacks, of about three bushels each. The sacks to be furnished without extra charge to the Government. The hay and straw to be securely baled.

The particular kind or descriptions of oats, corn, hay or straw, proposed to be delivered must be stated in the proposals.

All the articles offered under the bids herein invited, will be subject to a rigid inspection by the Government Inspector before being accepted.

Contracts will be awarded from time to time to the lowest responsible bidder, as the interest of the Government may require, and payment will be made when the whole amount contracted for shall have been delivered and accepted.

The bidder will be required to accompany his proposal with a guarantee, signed by two responsible persons, that in case the contract be awarded to him, he will, in ten days thereafter, execute the contract for the same, with good and sufficient sureties, in a sum equal to the amount of the contract, to deliver the forage proposed in conformity with the terms of this advertisement; and in default the said bidder should fail to enter into the contract, they to make good the difference between the offer of said bidder and the next lowest responsible bidder, or the person to whom the contract may be awarded.

The responsibility of the guarantors must be shown by the official certificate of a United States District-Attorney, Collector of Customs, or any other officer under the United States Government, or responsible person known to this office.

All bidders will be duly notified of the acceptance or rejection of their proposals.

The full name and Post-office address of each bidder must be legibly written in the proposal.

Proposals must be addressed to Brigadier-General D. H. Rucker, Chief Depot Quartermaster, Washington, D. C., and should be plainly marked "Proposals for Forage."

Bonds, in a sum equal to the amount of the contract, signed by the contractor and both of his guarantors, will be required of the successful bidder or bidders upon signing the contract.

Blank forms of bids, guarantees, and bonds, may be obtained upon application to this office.
